A Fast Uppercut Fortunately Fails to Land

WHEN Queen Marie visited Mount Vernon, the home of George Washington, Superintendent Dodge suddenly decided that no photographs would be allowed. A photographer made this picture just as Mr. Dodge threw up his hand in an effort to stop him. The Queen is lifting her head to make sure that Mr. Dodge misses her, as luckily he did. Behind them are the women of the Mount Vernon Association and the Queen's suite.

After expressing the hope that a noisy welcome, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas sat next to their mother. Replying to the address of welcome by William L. Dehob, president of the chamber, the Queen said:

"I am almost overwhelmed by the reception I am receiving among you today. I look around and see all these men who are the backbone of the country and who have given up their busy hours for a day or part of a day to receive me, a woman, in their midst. It almost seems to me that it is too much honor to be done to one who, after all, is not man."

Purpose of Her Visit.
After expressing the hope that her visit would strengthen the friendship between Rumania and the United States, the Queen said: "I know that the basis of all civilization is exchange and that countries can only live when they are in close touch with each other. It is, therefore, that I hope you will really feel also, when I am gone, the sympathy for my country which I have come to try and create."

There was laughter when she said she was "really too full of emotion to say much more at this moment, as I have never faced an audience of so many men."

"I am afraid," she said, "that facing so many men makes me feel how very much of a woman I am—how really nothing—to stand before you representing a country which really the King would love to come and represent."

After the luncheon, the Queen and her party departed for Jersey City to catch a train for Philadelphia to visit the Sequi-Centennial exposition. It is estimated that 10,000 persons were at the Jersey City station when the Queen's train started for Philadelphia at 2:15 p. m.

Gen. John J. Pershing was the first of 100 persons presented to the Queen at a reception in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel last night. The line formed in the grand ballroom, which had been converted into a colorful autumnal forest decorated with Rumanian flags.

Her son, Prince Nicholas, and her daughter, Princess Ileana, and half a dozen others were in the receiving line with Queen Marie. She wore a dress which had the appearance of solid silver. Surrounding her head and flaring outward at the sides was a tiara of diamonds and pearls, while high in front of the tiara was a magnificent emerald, the size of a walnut. On each side of the tiara was one other great green stone. From this head-dress hung ropes of pearls, a necklace of large diamonds and bracelets of pearls around each wrist. Draped from her shoulders was a train of brilliant jade green lined with silver which fell to the floor and dragged a few inches. The Queen carried a bouquet of orchids.

Prince and Princess Dance.
After presentations and the supper in the dining room the guests returned to the ballroom for dancing. The Queen does not dance, but Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana danced and apparently enjoyed it immensely.

The reception was given by the Society of the Friends of Rumania. William Nelson Cromwell, the society's president, and Mrs. Cromwell, were in the receiving line. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., and Mrs. Vincent Astor were among those present.

At her request, the Philadelphia plans were changed to permit her to attend an afternoon service in a Rumanian church. After the service a reception will be held in her hotel followed by a dinner in her honor given by Mayor Kendrick. This evening she will attend the "Ballet Fantastique" in the Sequi-Centennial auditorium and make a tour of the exposition grounds.

Following warnings yesterday, hundreds of Miami residents began an exodus and northbound automobiles filled highways leading out of Miami, while railroad stations were packed with others awaiting passage. Hundreds of cars passed through West Palm Beach yesterday. This stream had decreased today, however, to a few scattering automobiles.

Queen Has a Cold.
After reviewing the midshipmen at Annapolis yesterday, in the rain, the Queen had a slight cold. A physician said she was physically and emotionally exhausted by her strenuous day. He warned her to conserve her strength for the long tour of the country yet to come.

"Now I am afraid I shall have to look after myself," Queen Marie said with a smile. "What a bore!"

Such dissension has arisen over a benefit performance at the Metropolitan Opera House which the Queen will attend Sunday night, that Mrs. Charles H. Sablin, wife of the president of the Guaranty Trust Co., named as a patroness, has repudiated her connection with the affair. The use of Gov. Smith's name as "honorary chairman of the reception committee" was unauthorized, it is stated on the Governor's behalf.

Baltimore's Welcome Warmest of Tour So Far.
By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 21.—Queen Marie received in Baltimore yesterday the most tumultuous welcome accorded her since she landed in America.

With the right of way over roads made slippery by a heavy rain, the official cars whisked the royal party from Washington to Annapolis, then to Baltimore, without mishap. In the country groups gathered to smile and nod and wave. Nearly every farm house window framed a fluttering handkerchief. Schools along the route were dismissed and the pupils' shrill shouts of "There's the Queen!" drew smiling acknowledgments from Marie.

Roadside groups increased until the party was nearly halted by the crush when it entered Baltimore. For three miles the automobiles crept at a snail's pace through a cheering throng standing bareheaded in the rain. At the Hotel Belvedere an official luncheon was served. Queen Marie took her place at the luncheon table between Mayor Howard W. Jackson, and Dr. William H. Welch, dean of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. She was dressed in beige crepe, with a metallic coat of green, brown and bronze. Her close fitting toque was of brown satin and velvet and she wore beige silk hose and lizard shoes. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids.

After luncheon the party proceeded to the Baltimore War Memorial building, where the city's official welcome was extended in the presence of 4000 persons who filled the auditorium and uncounted thousands packed the city hall plaza.

A 21-gun salute was fired as Marie, escorted by Mayor Jackson, crossed the broad plaza on a green carpet, treading upon rose petals strewn by flower girls. Mayor Jackson, in his welcome, dwelt upon the bond existing between the two countries as allies in the world war. The Queen in a brief acknowledgment expressed pleasure.

"I am here as a Queen because I am Queen," she said. "But I also am a woman. And speaking in this building erected to honor those who died in the last great war, I feel sure that I am expressing the sentiment of all the women here when I say that if it were left to the women, there would be no more wars."

night when struck by a sign blown down by the high wind.

No damage of any consequence was reported either at Palm Beach or West Palm Beach. Public utilities officials said that they expected to have light and power service restored by tonight and telephone and telegraph repair men were restoring crippled communication lines.

The circuits, which had been hastily put into condition after the September winds, were the first to feel the effects of last night's gales.

IDENTIFIES WOMAN AS THE 'MISS X' IN M'PHERSON CASE

Salinas Judge Says Mrs. Kimball, Twin Sister of the Exangelist's Accuser Signed Affidavit.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 21.—Judge J. A. Bardin of Salinas, Cal., today positively identified Mrs. Viria Kimball of Oakland as the woman who signed the "Miss X" affidavit in his office at Salinas, Aug. 15 in furtherance of the alleged scheme of Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sieff, Mrs. Kimball's twin sister, to produce false evidence to support the kidnapping story of Mrs. Almee Semple McPherson, evangelist, accused of conspiracy.

Bardin, appearing as a defense witness, looked at Mrs. Kimball, then declared she was the woman who had signed the document intended to dissipate rumors that the evangelist had been the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston at a cottage at Carmel last May.

Mrs. Kimball, under examination by W. I. Gilbert, chief of defense counsel, a moment before, denied that she had ever been in Bardin's office, but admitted she had been in Salinas on the morning the affidavit was made.

Says She Was with Miss Wells.
She declared she went to Salinas accompanied by Mrs. Wiseman and Miss Rachel Wells of Philadelphia. Mrs. Wiseman, state's witness and co-defendant with Mrs. McPherson, testified she had brought Miss Wells from the East to pose as Ormiston's companion at the direction and under the pay of Mrs. McPherson.

Rescinding previous instructions to her followers, Mrs. McPherson today issued a general invitation to her flock to attend her hearing during the presentation of defense testimony. Speaking at last night's service at the Temple, she explained that she had wanted her people to stay away from the trial while "bad things" were being said about her, but now the defense was ready to "make the defense about nice things," and those who could should go to court and listen.

Defense Witnesses Heard.
Five defense witnesses were called yesterday.

M. R. Gonzales, saloon proprietor of Agua Prieta, Mexico, the first person to whom Mrs. McPherson appealed for help when she appeared in the little village just across the border from Douglas, was in the witness box when court adjourned. Gonzales, through an interpreter, described how he discovered the evangelist in the early morning of June 23, lying on the lawn in front of his home.

Under cross examination, Gonzales admitted that a light had been purposely left burning in his home after he retired. He was expecting someone, but he could not recall whom.

C. E. Patterson, rancher, and C. E. Gross, cowboy, told the court that the expenses of their trip here had been defrayed by Mrs. McPherson and both added that they expected to be paid $10 a day while in court.

New Evidence for State.
Additional evidence was offered District Attorney Keyes by Thomas T. Towne of Salt Lake City, a stationary engineer, who declared he saw Mrs. McPherson changing from a bathing suit to street clothes in an automobile at Venice, Cal., May 15 last, when she disappeared.

Towne said the evangelist left the scene in an automobile driven by a man who closely resembled Ormiston.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE, MAN WEDS
By the Associated Press.
EBENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—The marriage of Frank Aiken, 26 years old, to Mrs. Myrtle Bates, a widow, on the eve of his departure for the Western Pennsylvania Penitentiary under a life sentence for murder, became known after Aiken was taken to the prison. The ceremony was performed in the county jail Tuesday, Aiken being permitted to leave his cell only for a few minutes for the ceremony.

Mrs. Bates was named as Aiken's fiancée at his trial for the murder of Mrs. Verna Beers, his step-sister. The prosecution gave opposition to the match by Mrs. Beers as the motive for the crime.

Driving with Mrs. Ganz through Italy, Switzerland and Germany, and between New York and St. Louis in both directions, Ganz found his worst road last evening in the town of Highland, Ill., 33 miles east of St. Louis. "And to make it worse," he added, "they told me the people of that town were Swiss. I am myself a native of Switzerland. But Swiss or no Swiss, I told them they should be able to build a highway through their town, or the town should be blown off the map."

Arky Made Fortune Signing Bail Bonds Found Worthless

and Edward Silvey for $3000, all in bonds standing in Arky's name on the records of the Circuit Clerk. Of these the $7500 Ryan bond signed with Judge Gayer's permission and he also allowed Arky to sign a $1000 bond for Joe North and a $5000 bond for Mary Fields. Circuit Judge Percy took Arky on two $1500 bonds with Anna Singer and David Zuckerman as principals. Circuit Judge Mix accepted Arky as bondsman for $5000 in the case of Sam Salger.

Post-Dispatch reporters who went over the Circuit Clerk's records found numerous instances of Arky bonds declared forfeited by the Court. The total may run as high as the $30,000 reported by investigators of the Association for Criminal Justice. However, when these forfeitures were followed through the records, they showed that after extensions Arky had produced the defendants and the forfeitures were set aside, or else that he had convinced the various judges that he had made diligent efforts to find his principals and the bonds were discharged on that showing. The only two bond forfeitures against Arky which reached the point of execution were the Moore and Edwards bonds.

It will be recalled that Judge Ittner, in the slot machine case, accepted W. A. Rife and Eric A. Clodius as bondsmen without requiring them to file qualifications or even leave their addresses with the court. Judge Ittner also accepted "Gasoline Jack" Rubenstein as surety on bonds totaling $7250. Rubenstein proved to be bankrupt and was arrested as a suspect in a robbery. Arky's bonds were signed by Rubenstein with Judge Ittner's permission remain upon the records of the Circuit Clerk uncollected and marked "no good."

"Arky Is My Friend" Ittner Says.
Recently Arky has been in bad favor with a majority of the Circuit Judges who refused to let him sign bonds in the court. Circuit Judge Ittner, however, continued to accept Arky as a bondsman. In criminal cases while he was in the criminal division. He frankly told a Post-Dispatch reporter of his feeling of friendship for Arky, remarking: "Sam Arky is my friend and I'm not ashamed of him."

On his part Arky has been pronounced in his expressions of regard for Judge Ittner. He headed a delegation which presented the Judge with a diamond fraternal ring some months ago. He was also a member of a delegation which included George Dominick, another bondsman, that visited several Circuit Judges asking them to assign Judge Ittner to the Criminal division in 1924.

Laxity in Law Administration.
The Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, in its survey published yesterday attributed Missouri's bail bond problem to "too great laxity in the administration of existing laws."

Investigators for the association reported Arky's only qualification sheet found on Sept. 1, 1925, given to the Police Department on Jan. 18, 1924. Listed real estate assessed at $15,000, but mortgaged for $22,000, and $20,000 in personal property. He was delinquent on 1923 and 1924 taxes and the Federal Government had a large claim for delinquent income taxes pending. He had been arrested 12 times on minor charges. Although he had $20,000 in bonds, his standing on Sept. 1, 1925, he was surety on $30,000 of bonds then, of which one Circuit Judge, not named by the association, had approved $65,500 worth. In the year ending Oct. 1, 1924, he furnished $390,595 in bonds in the Court of Criminal Correction and $277,000 in Circuit Court, a total of $667,595. In spite of the small value of his mortgaged real estate, and his fees probably were from $23,000 to $100,000.

A subsequent qualification for Arky, dated Jan. 12, 1925, was discovered in Court of Criminal Correction, which asserted Arky owned one additional piece of property which cost $12,500 and was mortgaged for $6500, and another which cost $12,000 and was mortgaged for $3000. However, records show that the assessment of this property totals $24,010, and that it is encumbered for $31,500, the first piece in Arky's wife's name and the second a church exempt of taxes "no doubt," the association explains, "for the reason that the title, if held by individuals, is held in trust."

A Question for the Judges.
In commenting on the activities of Arky, former Circuit Judge Hugo Grimm said at Kansas City yesterday in his report on the bond situation before the Chamber of Commerce, Bar Association and Real Estate Exchange:

"Just how will you explain the conduct of the judges who have taken this man on this excessive amount of bonds? You may suggest that perhaps they were ignorant of this bondsman's lack of qualifications, but wasn't it the plain duty of the Judges to satisfy themselves on that point?"

A Post-Dispatch reporter asked Judge Ittner why he granted two long extensions to Arky in the Moore and Edwards bonds and left the criminal division without requiring Arky to settle with the State?

"I do not care to discuss the matter," said Judge Ittner.

U. S. Can't Collect Claim.
Arky has not been accepted as a bondsman in the Federal Court since 1923 when he ran afoul of the Government through delinquency in income taxes. He owed the Government $49,745 in 1924 for the three preceding years. When interviewed about this debt he admitted it was a just claim, but said he would not pay it because his produce business had failed after making money for three years. This claim for $49,745 is still standing against him in the Collector's office, but Government officials have found that Arky has no assets in his own name which can be levied upon.

THREE AVIATORS HELD FOR KILLING MAN WITH PLANE

Machine Dropped From Skies Apparently to Scare Cotton Pickers, and Hit Veteran.

By the Associated Press.
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 21.—Three army aviators were under arrest today, accused of killing a Confederate veteran by swooping down from the clouds and striking him with an airplane.

The three are Lieutenants A. J. Lehman, J. C. A. Dennison and Claire Stroh.

Maj. H. H. C. Richards, commander of Maxwell Flying Field, ordered them arrested pending arrival from Atlanta of Col. Henry S. Wagner, inspector of the Fourth Corps Area. They are charged with voluntary manslaughter and probably will be court-martialed.

Frank G. Browder, 83, was killed yesterday by a plane while inspecting one of the fields in his cotton plantation. Clarke Henry, a Negro, who stood nearby, was injured. The plane dropped from the skies, presumably for the purpose of frightening Negro cotton pickers as a joke.

The plane went on, leaving no trace, and it was learned at Maxwell Field that nearly every aviator at the post was in the air at the time of the killing. Mechanics denied that any of the planes had dipped or flown low. A search for damaged wings or struts was made and the arrests followed.

Maj. Richards stated today that investigation had practically eliminated Lieutenants Stroh and Dennison from connection with the killing.

Sheriff Phelps previously had announced that he would make formal demand on the military officials for Lieut. Lehman and Flight Sergeant Ray Francisco as the men flying in the plane.

Maj. Richards indicated that he would resist the demand and that a "court-martial would take up the case. All the officers had denied that they flew lower than 1000 feet.

Deaf Mourn Dr. J. H. Cloud, Their Friend and Teacher

Hard of Hearing Since Infancy He Rose to Be Noted Preacher to the Afflicted—Funeral Sunday.

The deaf of St. Louis who knew the Rev. James Henry Cloud as pastor, teacher and friend, will assemble in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday afternoon for his funeral. A nationally and even internationally known figure passed with the death of Dr. Cloud yesterday in St. Luke's Hospital of heart disease, after several months' illness.

Though deaf from infancy, he became a clergyman of the Episcopal Church and principal of a public school.

One of his dearest friends was Bishop Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, who died in 1923 at the age of 86. Bishop Tuttle once spoke to Dr. Cloud of his own hearing defect and of his great interest in the deaf.

Suggested Prayer for Deaf.
At Dr. Cloud's suggestion, Bishop Tuttle composed a special prayer for the deaf, as follows:

O God, our Heavenly Father, the Author and Giver of all good things, we thank Thee for the sign language for the deaf, and for all the blessings which the use of it has brought. Grant readiness and vigor, we pray, that they may continue to be in deed and in word. Mercifully show Thyself to be the Fountain of Wisdom to our thirsting minds and the Source of Hope to our longing hearts, that we may be free from sorrowful heaviness and may drink in the sweetness in the eternal, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

This prayer doubtless will be repeated by many at the services Sunday. Bishop Johnson and Dean Scarlett will officiate. Interment will follow in Memorial Park Cemetery. The body is now in state at an undertaker's establishment at 2223 South Grand boulevard.

Was Head of Gallaudet School.
Dr. Cloud was 64 years old. In point of service he was the oldest of the Episcopal clergy here. In 1890 he came to St. Louis from Philadelphia to become principal of what is now the Gallaudet School for the Deaf, holding that position until he resigned, in 1922. From 1890 until his death he conducted St. Thomas' Mission to the Deaf.

Through the courtesy of Christ Church Cathedral, the mission was conducted in the cathedral.

Dr. Cloud donated his services. Every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock he held sign language services in Hoffman Chapel of the Cathedral.

Likewise, he officiated there at marriages and funerals. It was a strange sight for a visitor to see a whole congregation and its rectory worshipping without a spoken word.

Once a month St. Thomas' con-

THE REV. J. H. CLOUD.

gregation had a social meeting in Schuyler Memorial House. The members enjoyed dances, games and plays.

Served Deaf as Translator.
On other occasions they would attend ordinary church services, diocesan meetings and the like, and interpreters would accompany them to translate spoken words into signs. Sometimes they would have an oral address at their own services, and again the interpreter would be present.

Though he preached regularly to the deaf in the sign language, Dr. Cloud could speak orally. He occasionally addressed organizations interested in the welfare of the deaf. He was an advocate of sign language for the deaf, as opposed to the newer lip-reading method.

Resume of His Work.
At the suggestion of Bishop Tuttle, he prepared in 1923 a statement of the work his church was doing among the deaf. He estimated there were no fewer than 800 deaf persons residing in St. Louis and adjoining suburbs, and added:

"Church work among the deaf of our diocese had a comparatively early start, beginning 42 years ago with an occasional service by a lay-reader, followed by services every few weeks by a deaf clergyman—the late Rev. A. W. Mann. These occasional services continued for a period of 15 years—up to 34 years ago, when I came to take charge of the St. Louis Day School for the Deaf, now the Gallaudet School, which position I resigned over a year ago in order to give all my time to the work of the ministry."

"In point of numerical strength our mission here is the third largest of its kind in the country. . . . Our mission register shows 189 baptisms, among them being quite a few hearing children of deaf parents; 296 confirmations, 73 marriages and 320 communicants. The present number of communicants is 157. Our mission is composed almost exclusively of working people, most of whom also are the support of relatives."

In his statement, Dr. Cloud paid tribute to his co-workers, including his wife, who directed the woman's guild of the mission. He also referred to the fact that he was missionary to the deaf in dioceses of Missouri, Kansas and Colorado.

He is survived by his widow and four children, Mrs. George M. Flint of Dallas, Tex.; John Koble Cloud of New York; George Herbert Cloud of St. Louis and Daniel Tuttle Cloud of Olathe, Kan.

HIGH VOLTAGE RAY TURNS OIL SOLID, MAKES ROCK GLOW

cathode) sealed in a glass vacuum tube. If in the passage they encounter some dense metal, such as tungsten, they are deflected and become X-rays, which are of a different amplitude from the Beta or direct cathode ray.

Knowledge of the cathode rays dates back 50 years, when an English scientist, Sir William Crookes, discovered them in a clumsy, air-exhausted glass vessel. Laboriously he sought to make them tell their story, for they wouldn't work in the air outside the tube, and there were few helpful tests he could make by introducing experimental matter into the vacuum. He didn't learn much about them, but he was somewhat rewarded by having his name applied generally to the type of tube in which they were generated.

Now Cathode Tube.
Then a German physicist, Leonard, conceived the idea of substituting a tiny piece of aluminum, about the size of the head of a pin, for a part of the glass in one end of the tube and succeeded in getting a few of the rays to pass through it. Later experimenters improved on this a little, but until the Coolidge tube was invented, cathode rays never were produced outside the vacuum in any considerable amount.

Dr. Coolidge adhered to the "metal window" idea of Leonard, but perfected it.

The tube displayed last night has approximately a three-inch "window" of nickel foil half-a-thousandth of an inch thick. This exceedingly thin membrane is prevented from rupturing under the 100-pound pressure caused by creation of the vacuum by a molybdenum support on the inner side. This support is perforated so as to offer the least possible obstruction to the outgoing rays. The nickel foil foreshadowed practically none.

Dr. Coolidge then perfected his "hot cathode," which means he heated one of the terminals before introducing the high voltage current. Thus he increased the velocity of the electrons immensely. Then, he invented a means for maintaining the vacuum in the tube without the use of cumbersome and elaborate pumps. Thus he made his apparatus portable. Finally he introduced voltage far beyond any attempted before him.

The visible result is: A glass vessel, 5 feet long, bulging in the middle, resembling an overgrown

X-ray tube, attached to a huge induction coil and set amid a seeming tangle of insulators, wires, supports and switches.

Releasing the Rays.
All light in the room goes out except the tiny glow from the heated filament inside the glass. A buzz, a smell of ozone and a ball of light the size and color of a purplish pumpkin is clamped instantaneously on the metal end of the tube opposite the coil.

Three hundred and fifty thousand volts of electricity are sending an unbelievable hail of atomic bullets—electrons moving with a velocity of 150,000 miles a second—through the metal window. The cathode ray is taking to the air.

The crackle ceases, the purple glow vanishes, and as the lights are turned on in the room the demonstrator explains that besides the cathode rays a considerable quantity of X-rays have been produced by collision of the electrons with the metal "window" and support.

With the present maximum voltage of 350,000, both cathode and X-rays from the tube go at below the velocity of 168,000 miles a second attained by the Beta rays from radium. When the contemplated voltage of 2,000,000 is reached, their speed will be increased to that of radium rays.

Glow Through Cold.
For the first experiment a crystal of Calcite, or Iceland Spar, a very clear form of marble, is placed in front of the tube. Again the switch is thrown as the room is darkened and the mysterious ray plays on the crystal for the fraction of a second.

With the first onslaught of the hurtling particles the calcite turns, apparently, red hot. The ray is shut off and it continues to glow. It will glow for hours after, although remaining perfectly cold to the touch. Why? That is one of the things to be found out.

A piece of granite is subjected to a bombardment of electrons in the same way. The result is the same except that where the calcite glows with a uniform reddish-orange luminescence, the exposed surface of the granite becomes a dazzlingly beautiful mass of many colors—indeed, it seems, of every color.

Other minerals are rayed with corresponding results. The light in some dies with the ray. In others it persists coldly beautiful for hours and even days.

A tube of acetylene gas, this time containing also an aluminum disk, is briefly exposed. Now there is not quite so much of the powder, but the disk is lacquered with a varnish-like film of brown that defies removal. The powder is subjected to a heat of 4000 degrees. It does not melt. All known solvents are tried on it. It will not dissolve. It is some unnamed matter new to science.

Other Experiments Described. Results of other experiments made in the past were described. It was told how a small spot on a live rabbit's ear was rayed for a tenth of a second. Within a few days the rayed skin became deeply pigmented and the hair came out. It was not until seven weeks after the treatment that new hair appeared.

But—another similar spot was rayed for one second. After several days a scab formed and a few days later came off, taking the hair with it. In only two weeks a profuse growth of snow-white hair had started which quickly grew much longer than the bunny's original gray hair.

Cane sugar dissolved in water, rayed and tested with litmus, was shown to have become acid. A bottle of castor oil exposed to the same treatment changed rapidly to a solid material.

What is the material? What made the transformation? What meaning do the answers to these questions hold for medical and commercial science? Replies must be left to time.

Bacteria have been rayed and an exposure of one-tenth of a second has been sufficient to kill the toughest of them. Fruit flies and other insects exposed for a small fraction of a second have died.

Makes No Predictions.

Dr. Coolidge will make no predictions. He holds out no promises for future performances. Such as have been touched on in this article have been gleaned from his associates, scientific men, but with enthusiasm held possibly less in check than are those of the calculating machine, who is their leader. His motto might be, "Do it, prove it, then maybe talk about it."

Although the lack of gray hairs among his black curls belies the fact, he will be 53 years old next Saturday. And neither his X-ray tube, for which he was honored last night, nor his cathode ray tube, with which he crowned that honor, was his first great achievement.

He is largely responsible for the development of Mazda lamps, and thereby for the presence in the world of much more light for much less money than there might have been without him. He discovered a way to make strong ductile filaments of tungsten when the brittleness of that metal seemed to bar it forever from use in the manufacture of lamps. For this he was awarded the Rumford medal in 1914.

Dr. Coolidge is a native of Hudson, Mass., and was educated in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Leipzig. He has been assistant director of the General Electric research laboratory since 1904, and is a member of many technical societies.

FRIEND TURNS UP FUGITIVE

FREE IN ST. LOUIS 9 MONTHS

Letter to Home Town Is Undoing of Prisoner Serving for Offense Against Woman.

After escaping from the Boonville Reformatory and hiding away for more than nine months in St. Louis, Frank Waters, 18 years old, blundered by writing a letter to a friend at his old home at Farmington, Mo.

The friend, who apparently thought Waters would be better off serving a 25-year sentence assessed in February, 1923, for an offense against a woman, gave the letter to Deputy Sheriff William Kincaid of St. Francois County. Waters was arrested at the Ireland Candy Co., 501 North Main street, where he had been working as Fred Varner of 1329 Pine street.

He was taken back to Boonville last night to continue a sentence which provides that when he has reached the age of 21, he will be transferred to the penitentiary at Jefferson City to serve the rest of his term.

POLICE ASKED TO FIND WIFE

Delivery Man Says She went to See Physician Last Night.

Theodore Holzhauser, a bakery delivery man, of 109 Marguerite avenue, Ferguson, has asked police to look for his 25-year-old wife. She left home last night, leaving him with the children, to see her physician, as was customary Wednesday nights, but failed to return. The physician was not at his office today, and it could not be learned whether Mrs. Holzhauser had kept her appointment last night.

WILLIAMS HAD K. K. K. SUPPORT PROCTOR CHARGES

Defeated Dry Candidate for Republican Senatorial Nomination Issues Statement on Senator.

SEEKS PROSECUTION OF 'GRAND DRAGON'

Charges Dr. W. M. Campbell in Speech Called Him "Drunkard of the Lowest Grade."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—
Former State Senator David M.
Proctor, defeated "dry" candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate in the August primary, today issued a statement here which constitutes an attack upon Senator George H.
Williams. Though Proctor said he was supporting Williams, the attack on him was not greatly conceded in the statement.

It was a direct charge that in the primary Williams had the support of Dr. William M. Campbell of St.
Joseph, "grand dragon" of the Ku Klux Klan of Missouri, and that Williams and the "grand dragon" were intimate friends.

The statement was issued in connection with publicity given by Proctor to an affidavit he had sent to the Prosecuting Attorney of Mc-Donald County, asking that the "grand dragon" be prosecuted there for alleged statements by him at a public meeting. Proctor in the affidavit charging that Campbell had accused him in a public speech of being a "drunkard of the lowest grade."

Text of Proctor's Statement.
"In the recent Republican primary," Proctor said in his statement, "I knew that the Grand Dragon was against me and for my distinguished opponent, Senator Williams. I knew that he had publicly endorsed Senator Williams. I also was reliably informed that he, the Grand Dragon, and on one occasion, secured Senator Williams from St. Joseph to St. Louis; that on another occasion he had been the honored guest of Senator Williams in St.
Louis; and that on another occasion he had held long and closed conferences with Senator Williams in Washington, and that on diverse other occasions he had received telegrams and other communications from Senator Williams soliciting his views concerning pending political appointments and governmental policies."

"I knew then, and do now, that the grand dragon possessed both the moral and the legal right to support my opponent, Senator Williams, and the corresponding right to oppose my nomination. In fact, considering the intimate friendship existing between the grand dragon and the Senator, he would have been a base ingrate had he not supported Senator Williams."

"I gladly and conservatively give to Dr. Campbell the credit of contributing more to the success of Senator Williams in the primary than any other single element of support."

Its Political Significance.
The political importance of Proctor's statement is that it indicates clearly the fact that the Proctor element of the Republican party is not only doing nothing for Senator Williams in this campaign, but is bringing to bear against him
a charge calculated to do him greater injury in St. Louis, where it is known the tide is running against him, than any other that could be brought.

Proctor did not conceal his real purpose by a sentence in the statement that "I am supporting his grand dragon's own chosen candidate for the United States Senate." That only served to keep Proctor's party record apparently straight.

Proctor complained that Campbell's statement, alleged to have been made in the Anderson speech, was nearly two months after the primary and long after Proctor had ceased to be a candidate. Statements made during the primary fight, he said, he had charged up to "politics" and had dismissed from his mind, but he did not feel he should ignore statements made after the primary.

Statements Complained of.
The affidavit made by Proctor and sent to the McDonald County prosecutor contained quotations of the "Grand Dragon's" alleged libelous statements. Proctor quoted him as having said that "he was a drunkard of the lowest grade and is often in drunken night parties," that "he is now getting intoxicating liquor at nine different drug stores in Kansas City."

In a letter to the prosecutor,
Proctor said that the statement constituted an accusation that he had committed a felony, and concluded that former Crown Prince Carol of your county to institute criminal libel proceedings against Dr. Campbell at once.

throne. The reports were based on pers. The functionary of the royal Carol's interview with Queen household says they are "entirely Marie in Paris and were published untrue, clearly mendacious and des-in Rumanian and foreign newspa-tined to mislead public opinion."

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—A flip of a coin rolled two St. Louis youths into jail here yesterday. They were Andy Markovich, 15 years old, and Charles Flannily, 19. They decided to go to Florida and Markovich suggested making the trip in a freight car, but his older companion proposed stealing an automobile. The coin favored Flannily and they were caught while attempting to take a car.

Want Coolidge at Football Game.
By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 21.—W. T. Grant, chairman of the committee in charge of plans for ceremonies incident to the dedication of Kansas City's memorial to the war dead, Nov. 11, has received a request from Chancellor E. H. Lindley of Kansas University that some arrangement be made whereby the President and Mrs. Coolidge may attend the Oklahoma-Kansas football game at Lawrence the afternoon of Armistice day. Under present plans, President Coolidge is to speak at the dedication ceremonies at 2 o'clock Armistice day, making it impossible for him to attend the game at Lawrence. Grant suggested to Chancellor Lindley that the game be played in the morning so that if the President saw fit he might attend.

PRISON REFORMER DEAD

THOMAS MOTT OSBORNE.

THOS. M. OSBORNE, PRISON REFORMER, DIES ON STREET

Body Identified by Metal Check Which He Received as Voluntary Inmate of Auburn Prison.

By the Associated Press.
AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Thomas Mott Osborne, noted for his activities in behalf of prison reform, is dead.

Stricken dead on the street by heart disease last night, he was identified at an undertaker's establishment through a little metal check with the name "Tom Brown" engraved upon it, which Mr. Osborne received when he voluntarily entered Auburn Prison as a prisoner, to study the actual life of convicts.

His experience at Auburn suggested many reforms, some of which he had an opportunity to put in effect as Warden of Sing Sing Prison and later at the Naval Prison at Portsmouth, N. H., of which he had charge during the war.

While Osborne won his chief fame through formation of the Mutual Welfare Leagues for convicts and his other activities for the prison population, he was also active in political and civic affairs. An independent Democrat in politics, he served as Mayor of Auburn and was once candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. He was in his 63rd year.

Osborne's survivors are his sons, David M., Charles D., Lithgow and Robert Osborne of Auburn and his sister, Mrs. J. J. Storow of Boston. His wife, who was Agnes Devens of Cambridge, Mass., died 30 years ago.

Political and Reform Career of Late Prison Warden.

A decade ago the name of Thomas Mott Osborne became synonymous with prison reform and the honor system in the welfare movements for convicts.

He was born in Auburn Sept. 2, 1859, a member of the family which owned the Osborne Plow Co., later absorbed by the International Harvester Co. For many years he published the Auburn Citizen. A wealthy young man, he early became interested in politics and public service, and served in 1896 as a gold standard delegate to the Democratic convention which nominated William Jennings Bryan for the presidency the first time. He was an up-State Democratic leader, opponent of Tammany Hall.

He was Mayor of Auburn from 1903 to 1905 and in 1907 was appointed one of New York's first Public Service Commissioners by Gov. Hughes. In 1911 he served as Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner.

Entered Prison.

During this time he had become interested in social reforms, especially in prisons, and in 1913 he was appointed by Gov. Sulzer, chairman of a commission on prison reform. It was then that he attracted national attention by entering Auburn prison for a week to study conditions there—as a convict, "Tom Brown," No. 33,333X7. He came forth from that incarceration with many recommendations for reform, based on a belief in humane treatment and faith in the innate decency of men, even convicts, which he believed would be evident if they were treated well. He was appointed Warden of Sing Sing and assumed charge Dec. 1, 1914.

It was not long before the State was split by controversy over his ideas of prison management. Taxes came from the prison of convicts going to motion pictures, playing baseball and having a Welfare League through which lenient treatment was accorded prisoners who behaved themselves. His idea was to turn convicts into useful citizens. Osborne recommended paroles for many men who came under his charge, and when some were released he got jobs for them.

Indictments Dismissed.
This was too much for conservative citizens. He was coddling prisoners, they charged. Others were equally vehement in his defense.

The controversy came to a climax in 1915, when he was indicted by a Westchester County grand jury for "perjury and neglect of duty" and "immorality. All the charges were dismissed by Supreme Court Justices without hearing Osborne's testimony.

Osborne was reinstated as Warden of Sing Sing in July, 1916. He resigned the following October. In August, 1917, Osborne became a Lieutenant-Commander in the naval reserve and was made commandant of the Portsmouth naval prison. He was relieved in 1920 at his own request.

Osborne wrote many books on penology and during recent years was several times employed as an advisory penologist.

OF WAR, KOCH SAYS

Leader of Democratic Party in Germany Addresses Chamber of Commerce.

Old enemies met on the friendliest terms yesterday when Erich F. L. Koch, leader of German Democrats in the Reichstag, was guest of honor at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon attended by consular representatives of nations that were at war eight years ago.

Cordial greetings were exchanged and Herr Koch, making his first address in English, although he spoke in German last week at the University of California, found his audience more than appreciative.

A few of those in the crowd, which taxed the capacity of the chamber dining room to its utmost, had met the German statesman in Berlin, on the recent "good will" tour of Europe. It happened that Walter B. Welsenburger was to follow the honor guest with an illustrated report on the tour, and one of the pictures was of him with Ambassador Schurman and Herr Koch in Berlin, when they discussed plans for the Democratic leader's visit.

"When I came to this continent, I first went to Canada," Herr Koch remarked. "Among others I met there a Canadian gentleman who warned me that I could not see Canada within three weeks, and this rather discouraged me. A short time later the same gentleman told me that he had recently made his first trip across the ocean and that he had 'done Europe' in ten days! So I made up my mind to stick to my program, crossed Canada and entered the United States, coming from Vancouver to Seattle. I understand that they call this the 'bootlegger-way,' but there was no other way."

Germany's Rehabilitation. "Since then I have been 10 days in the United States, and I have got an idea of the huge development which is not at its end but at its beginning. I can only say that after my first impressions I am doubly glad to be here, for without a certain knowledge of the United States and their financial and economic development and structure, it is impossible to my mind to handle public affairs in Europe."

"I trust that your delegation just returned from Europe has also gained favorable and encouraging impressions from the old continent, and as a German I especially hope this regarding your impressions in Germany. My country, which was broken down by the war as perhaps no nation before in history, has during the last seven years worked for her recovery on the road of peace and co-operation of the nations, under a new constitution which is in many ways related to the American constitution and which is getting more and more popular among our people."

"Most of the troubles between the nations originate not through ill will and by purpose but through misunderstandings and distrust. I therefore trust that your trip has been useful not only to your country, but also to the world at large and to its peace."

That Herr Koch himself has been instrumental in furthering international understanding may be indicated by cordial reference to him in the "Phineland Journal" of Maj. Gen. Robert H. Allen, who said Herr Koch, then Minister of the Interior, had greatly facilitated the work of the occupation of the Rhineland.

"In the first years of the recovery of Germany other nations were not occupied by the spirit of the war," said Herr Koch in an interview at the offices of Dr. George Ahrens, German Consul. "America has helped Germany in many cases and in many ways."

States is represented and this country begins in that way to do its share for world justice."

Herr Koch departed last night of Detroit, to continue there on his way East, where his son is a student in Dartmouth University.

Harry Sloan, Theatrical Man, Dies. By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Harry Sloan, New York theatrical producer, and manager of the "Coal Oil Jennie" Company showing here, died today after a heart attack during last night's performance. He was 63.

An epochal event marking the value-giving possibilities of our merchandising plan.

Frocks for street, afternoon, business, bridge, sports, travel or evening wear. Naturally, the selection of values above $39.50 is not as large as that at $39.50 to $25.00—so early buying is urged.

Soft, clinging satins, exquisite Georgettes, Canton trimmed with velvet, lovely crepes, rich cloths, in fact virtually every fabric for which Fashion calls. Shades in every tone from lustrous black to evening tints.

Intriguingly beautiful styles without number. Vionett sleeves, blouses, metallic trims, faithful Paris copies in every detail. An array of Frocks you'd expect to find here, but not for so little as $18.

And in sizes for each and every figure; slim, youthful 14, 16, 18; graceful 36 to 44; full cut 46 to 50 and in half and quarter sizes, too.

FOOTBALL BARRED, STUDENTS

OF HIGH SCHOOL GO ON STRIKE

Businessmen and Laborers Hornell, N. Y., Parade Protesting Against Decree.

Hornell, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Discussing banners reading "no football, no school," more than 500 students of the high school here went on strike yesterday when the board of education refused to rescind a resolution abolishing football.

For three hours, in a heavy rain, the students paraded the principal streets. Bankers, business men and laborers were seen with the marchers. Police were called to dispel the students. Spokesmen for the strikers, backed by the alumni association, said the strike would continue until football is again permitted.

REFUSES TO NAME INFORMANT IN HIS ARREST OF GANGSTER

Police Officer's Defiance of Judge's Order Defended by Assistant City Counselor.

Standing on the contention that a policeman has certain secrets which he may legally withhold, even from a Court, Police Captain Nally, commanding the Carr Street District, today declined before Circuit Judge Ittner to answer a question put to him on the witness stand.

Captain Nally, questioned about the arrest of Vincent Spicuzza, Italian gangster, as a murder suspect, declined to say who had given him
the information leading to the arrest and his contention was supported by Assistant City Counselor Sentil.

After an extended argument between Sentil and Carl Dubinsky, another lawyer, Nally was told by Judge Ittner that he would have to answer the question. When he refused again, Judge Ittner set the case over to Nov. 11 to allow time to consider whether the policeman was justified in his stand.

Capt. Nally was a witness for the Police Department in a suit brought by Dubinsky's client, William Russo, to enjoin police interference with his gasoline filling station at Seventh and O'Fallon streets, where Spicuzza was arrested. Several adherents of the warring Italian faction have been arrested there from time to time, but Russo contends the police are visiting his place so frequently they are ruining his business.

RADIO BROADCASTING CONFUSION DISCUSSED

Paul B. Klugh Says Some Federal Supervision Must Be Obtained Quickly.

Politics as played by members of the United States Senate is to blame for the confusion "on the air" each night, Paul B. Klugh, executive chairman of the National Broadcasters' Association, declared yesterday in an address on radio legislation at Hotel Mayfair in connection with the Radio Show at the Coliseum.

Klugh declared that while the Senate is trying to decide whether to give control of pending legislation to the Department of Commerce or to a special radio commission, many broadcasters are using any wave length they choose, to the endless confusion of millions of radio fans who are likely to find interference at any place on their dial.

Explanation of the Delay.
Klugh's explanation of the delay in vesting radio control in some agency was that some Senators believe delegation of the power to the Department of Commerce will give the administration too tight a hold on an essential activity of the industry, while others are of the opinion that a special radio commission would get out of the control to the administration.

To us," said Klugh, speaking to members of the south-central district of the broadcasters, "it is immaterial which department enforces the legislation. But we must get some supervision and get it quickly to stop the present endless confusion in radio broadcasting."

Attendance at the Radio show continued to increase yesterday and officials at closing time last night estimated 12,000 had visited the Coliseum during the afternoon and evening.

K S D Program Today.

This afternoon Station KSD had charge of the broadcasting, giving a musical program featuring Miss Helen Ludwig, contralto, Mrs.
Charlotte Burton Stockton, violinist, Mrs. Frank A. Habig, pianist and Clarence Bloemker, tenor. Station KIVE, which has the broadcasting tonight, will give a popular program, which will be announced by George Allen of WOK, Chicago. Today's programs, like the others, will be broadcast from the crystal studio in the Coliseum.

WOULD REQUIRE FOUR YEARS TO BUILD DOWNTOWN SUBWAY

City Consulting Engineer Points Out That Legislative Enabling Act Is First Necessary.

Four years would be required for the completion of the downtown section of the proposed subway, C.
E. Smith, city consulting engineer, today told the Aldermanic Rapid Transit Committee in commenting on a report prepared by himself and President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service.

Amplifying the report, which was published a short time ago in the Post-Dispatch, Smith said legislation for the subway would take two years for enactment and actual work on the downtown section would take two more. By the end of 10 years from the initiation of the project the second section of the subway plan, taking in the central part of the city, could be completed, and by 15 years the city could have a complete system, he said.

Forrest G. Ferris, Associate City Counselor, told the committee the Legislature would have to pass an enabling act to allow the Aldermen to organize a subway committee with sufficient power to push the project through.

A meeting of the committee will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow at the Real Estate Exchange, where anyone who has an opinion on the project, can make himself heard.
Later Richard W. Meade, president of the People's Motorbus Co., and Col. Albert T. Perkins, manager for the receiver of the United Railways Co., are to be asked to discuss the project with the committee.

WRIT HOLDING UP POLICE BUILDING WORK WITHDRAWN

Agreement Reached on Method of Driving Piles So as Not to Endanger Warehouse.

Circuit Judge Calhoun today vacated his temporary order restrain-ing contractors at work on the foundations of the new $1,000,000
Police Headquarters building at Twelfth and Clark streets from driving piles, after an agreement had been reached satisfactory to the petitioners, Mrs. Edna Yeckel, owner of a warehouse at 1218
Spruce street.

Mrs. Yeckel had alleged that the driving of piles for the foundation endangered the walls of her building. Under the agreement, the contractors are to "jetty" the piles into the ground by use of water so as to remove the possibility of jarring the walls of the warehouse.
The petitioner also has a temporary order from Judge Calhoun restraining city officials from interference with her tenants in the warehouse, Goldman Brothers Furniture Co. This matter was passed pending further testimony in the case.

Work was resumed today on the headquarters building foundations after being tied up by the restrain-ing order since Oct. 14.

with the raid here New Year's

Following the raid the lodge was suspension was lifted by the grand

St. Louis lodge had reported court

For the single store . . . . . a touch of personality

Bordered built-in Linoleum Floors

MERE size doesn't make a business great.
Yet a merchant with a dozen stores has an advantage the single-store owner is denied. There are twelve points of contact with shoppers—twelve chances to study the things that draw trade.

Against these assets two problems present themselves. How to make each store distinctive? How to give the chain of stores a one-family appearance?

Several great national organizations—with a range of merchandise from sandwiches to automobiles—say the bordered floor of Armstrong's Linoleum gives both distinction and identity.

Framed with an appropriate border, these floors look and really are "built-in."
The finished job appears made to order for the particular shop in which it is laid.

Studebaker's add these floors to their sales force—not to the payroll. Fine cars look even better against a smart pattern floor. In many of the branches of the Eastern Division, Studebaker Corporation have installed—as a definite part of sales policy—Armstrong's Marble Tile Linoleum, laid with a plain black border. Even the floor tells you that you are in a "one-profit" salesroom.

In the Mariba Matilda Harper Beauty Shops.
"We are using nothing but Armstrong's Linoleum in our own shops," writes Robert A.
MacBain of the Harper Company. "And we have recommended that our agencies tie up with our decorative scheme likewise."

And in the Rinal Shoe Stores, also. The newest stores of this chain are equipped with a marbled pattern of Armstrong's Linoleum.
The design is a combination of gray and black squares set off by a black border.

Thom McAn secures family an Armstrong 3-pattern combination. You can't buy a pair of shoes without looking at the floor.
In over 200 Thom McAn shops customers see shoes against a background pattern floor of Armstrong's Linoleum. Three patterns are combined in such a way that people know they are in a Thom McAn store by the neat floor alone.

Where should you expect profit? Next to food in a restaurant comes cleanliness.
Several chain restaurant organizations, dozens of restaurants, find that pattern floors of Armstrong's Linoleum make cleanliness easy and simple.

The pattern chosen by one company is a rich red marble tile inlaid—framed with a plain linoleum border.

After the last customer has been served for the day, a bus-boy mops the floors clean, bright.

There is a merchant in your town who specializes on laying business floors of Armstrong's Linoleum. Let him show you the new patterns and estimate on these modern floors for your store or group of stores.

Described in our new FREE book Bordered floors are given special consideration in our new book, "Enduring Floors of Good Taste."
Photographs and colorplates show installations of Armstrong's Linoleum in businesses big and little. Write for it on your letterhead.

plan deferred payment

FRIGIDAIRE'S reputation for economy of operation is based on certain definite features of design and construction—features that are found only in Frigidaire.

The sturdily built Frigidaire cabinet is designed exclusively for electric refrigeration. It is thoroughly insulated against heat —an important feature in reducing operating costs. But of even greater importance is the Frigidaire frost coil—a development that replaced the less efficient brine tank. It maintains uniformly low temperatures and provides greater cooling power from a smaller amount of current.

Only in Frigidaire can you get these features of Frigidaire construction, Frigidaire design and Frigidaire economy. And only in Frigidaire can you get the larger food storage space, the greater ice making capacity, the finer finish, the quiet operation and the more precise engineering and manufacturing methods of General Motors. If you want true Frigidaire economy, efficiency, and dependability, be sure that the electric refrigerator you buy is a genuine Frigidaire. Size for size, it is the lowest priced electric refrigerator you can buy.

CAUGHT ON MOVING BELT AND KILLED

K. E. Boyd Fatally Crushed at Enameling Plant in Sight of His Two Brothers.

While two of his brothers worked near by, Kossuth E. Boyd, 19-year-old, was caught on a belt and crushed to death on an overhead pulley on which he had been making repairs at the National Enam-eling and Stamping Co. plant, 3500 North Second street, at 5 a. m. today.

Boyd, who lived with his mother at 3311 North Eleventh street, had been called upon to repair a broken drive belt and, having completed the lacing, had slipped it over the overhead drive pulley.

He was standing on two braces above five feet above the floor when his overalls became entangled in the lacing of the belt. Before he had time to pull away he was picked up and carried to the pulley, where he was caught. A workman turned off the power and the pulley was reversed to free him, but he died within a few moments.

His brothers, Glenwood, 24, and Harlan, 20, also employed at the plant, were working in the same room and helped to remove him from the mechanism.

CANTON, Ill., Oct. 21.—A spe-investigate the story told by Andrew Bemley, 21-year-old Negro, who has confessed that he was responsible for a dozen attacks on women in this city. The death penalty will be asked, it is indicated.

The grand jury inquiry will be in connection with the death of an aged man who died as the result of fighting the man in defense of his wife. This offense the Negro admitted in his confession. During the scuffle Oliver Eysong, 81 years old, was hurled against a bed post, breaking several ribs. He died nine days later.

In the course of Bacher's financial difficulties, the Hungarian Government proclaimed his many mills under state control, and although he turned over to the Government all his private investments abroad in order to meet his obligations, the public prosecutor ordered his arrest on the charge of having paid too high a rate of interest on his monies and of having failed to consult the other directors of the companies. Delegates to the Missouri Baptist General Association, in session at Third Church, Grand and Washington boulevards, today considered a recommendation for a new constitution which would change the name of the Association to "Missouri Baptist State Convention."

The executive board, headed by Arthur J. Barton of Kansas City, in presenting the proposed new constitution and by-laws, said that several changes were proposed, but that it was believed none would be likely to cause difference of opinion, unless it were the change of name. That, the board said, was "a matter about which no one would wish to be insistent," and if there should be any serious objection, the board would waive its recommendation. Some reasons were presented for considering "convention" a better word than "association," to denote the state-wide body. The name "association" would be left to local and district organizations.

Some of the Proposed Changes. The proposed new by-laws provide for the employing of associational missionaries by the local organizations. "When the missionary uses an automobile in the performance of his duty," one of the rules states, "he shall be allowed a flat rate of 5 cents a mile for use of his car when engaged in actual performance of his official duties."

A report on the condition of the six Baptist colleges was presented by the executive board yesterday. The colleges are William Jewell at Liberty, Stephens at Columbia, Will Mayfield at Marble Hill, Southwest Baptist at Bolivar, Hardin at Mexico and La Grange College at La Grange.

"Our colleges," the report said, "are all struggling against great odds for the lack of adequate equipment and endowment. We must face the facts fairly and meet the situation courageously if our Baptist colleges are to live in the face of the constant and increasing competition in the educational world. Great state universities backed and supported by the taxing power of the state, great colleges and universities supported by great personal beneficence and private funds, the increasing number of junior colleges and high schools with great buildings and equipment secured at public expense, all serve to bring the keenest competition. We well understand the larger value of education secured under proper religious influence."

"We know that Christian education is the only full and complete education. We know that a small denominational college produces a much larger number of eminent and useful men and women in proportion to the registration than any other class of institution. But the masses do not fully realize this, not even the masses of our own people. Hence if our Baptist schools are to survive and accomplish their mission, they must have adequate equipment."

"Of course, the supreme thing is that they shall be distinctly and distinctively religious in their ideals, atmosphere and activities. Nothing of an irreligious spirit or of vain and worldly character should find recognition or toleration in any of our Baptist schools. Every Baptist school in all of its personnel and appointments should be religious and spiritual through and through and should be the center and agency for the development not only of the spiritual life in the large but of the denominational spirit. If the denomination is expected to support the college, the college in turn ought to contribute and must contribute in large measure to the spiritual life and work of the denomination."

The presidents or other representatives of the colleges were scheduled to tell of their condition and needs, on this afternoon's program. The closing address of the afternoon is by Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of Furman University, Greenville, S. C.

Speakers at tonight's session will be Mrs. W. J. Cox, president of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention; Dr. J. W. Cammack of the Education Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Dr. I. J. Van Ness of the Sunday School Board.

Judge David H. Harris of Fulton will speak tomorrow morning on "Law Enforcement," and against Proposition No. 4, which is for repeal of the State prohibition law. The meeting will close tomorrow afternoon with an address on "Baptists and Religious Liberty," by Dr. McGlothlin of South Carolina.

COUNTY MUST JOIN CITY TO BENEFIT BY NEW TRANSIT PLAN

Merger, if Voted Tuesday, Would Put Control in Hands of St. Louis Engineer Smith Says.

UNCHANGED IF THE PROPOSAL FAILS

Cites Projected Line to Maplewood Which Would Have to Stop at the City Limits.

Improved transportation service for the St. Louis Public Service Co., which is to succeed the United Railways under reorganization plans pending with the city, will not be available for St. Louis County unless the county joins the city under the merger proposal to be voted on next Tuesday, C. E. Smith, city consulting engineer, who is active in the transit plan, declared today.

There is no question but that the reorganization will place control of transit operations in the hands of the city, Smith says in a statement, which was obtained by The Greater St. Louis Committee. Effect of the new franchise, Smith goes on, will be very beneficial within the city limits, extending service to areas not now served and improving service in general, including co-ordination of lines.

However, he declares, service beyond the city limits, if the merger fails, will not be changed and the only control of operations there will be in the present indirect system of the Public Service Commission. The merger would put all of the county under the power of the new franchise. Special rapid-transit lines being planned cannot be extended into the county, Smith explains, unless the merger passes.

One Projected Line. He cites the line projected to run over Lafayette avenue, Vandeventer avenue and Arsenal street in the vicinity of Maplewood, which if it could be extended under the franchise, would serve Maplewood, Webster Groves and Kirkwood. "Building of this line beyond the present city limits," he "depends entirely upon whether this territory becomes a part of the city."

"For years," he concludes, "county residents have been clamoring for improved transportation service downtown. An opportunity now presented. Citizens of St. Louis cannot be expected to provide at their own expense rapid-transit facilities that will favor county residents without co-operation from the latter."

View of Realty Dealer. These improvements, including transportation, says Holcomb, "will add values to real estate, will almost beyond estimation, and will have a much higher value and make all property owners in Greater St. Louis a large amount of money. A larger part of population naturally will build and new buildings of all sizes will be erected, adding to the value and income of the city and enabling the city to pay improvements without burdening the taxpayers."

The Bureau of Municipal Research has entered the merger discussion with an unusually large issue of its periodical, Mind Your Business, outlining details and effects of the consolidation proposal. It would give the city an area of 548 square miles, the largest municipality in the nation. The pamphlet, The county now has 25.4 square miles in incorporated territory and 162.1 square miles in unincorporated territory and 45 per cent of its area, it says, is in farms.

Conditions Similar in 1876. The composition would not be greatly different," the pamphlet points out, "from what was immediately following adoption of its present limits. At that time 40 per cent of the area of the city was urban and 60 per cent in farms. It was for the people of the city to determine the extent of unifying the government authority within the metropolitan area of this district. The present city and county are in the same position."

County "Gets the Gravy" In Proposed Merger With City Pine Lawn Resident Thinks

He Is Anxious to Have 800,000 People Help Ease His Tax Burden—Argument On Both Sides Presented in Letters.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY "gets the gravy" in the proposed city-county merger, writes an advocate of the merger program, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch. Another writer, taking the other side of the controversy, seems to fear that the county would get the "stockyard smell" now perceptible in one locality of the city. And so the discussion goes merrily on, preliminary to the balloting in city and county next Tuesday.

FOR MERGER.

Those Webster Schools. My son reported to me that a woman admonished the students at Junior High School, Webster Groves, to be sure and tell their parents to vote against annexation. She then said, "What does St. O. S. stand for, children?" Some cried out "Save Our Schools." It should have been "Save Our Situations."

We hear much about the wonderful schools of Webster Groves, especially from members of that School Board. Our school buildings are fair but cannot compare with school buildings in St. Louis. Our system is very mediocre indeed. The teachers are not required to be graduates of certain qualified institutions of learning, thus standardizing the methods used, but are selected at random, and apprentices are placed in our schools to acquire the necessary experience at the expense of our children's welfare.

More girls are put in grades to teach our boys and girls of adolescent age. What is the consequence? Lack of discipline and respect, which is a serious curtailment of proper learning. Pupils who have reached the seventh grade do not know the multiplication table.

We must have standardized methods and good discipline before the children can acquire a solid foundation of education. The additional tax of $15 for a few weeks of summer school, necessary in order that children may continue with their classes is quite popular in Webster Groves, and is mostly due to the inefficiency of the apprentice teachers. We also have the additional tax of $3.50 to $4 per month if we wish to send our little ones to kindergarten, with always the cry, "We have just enough money to pay the teachers' salaries, and nothing left for supplies," which means hard work for the Parent Teacher Association to scramble around and give bridge parties and other pay-as-you-enter entertainments to obtain the necessary funds.

The High School and Junior High are overcrowded, preventing some children from taking all subjects belonging to certain courses, and causing a shortage of books in junior high. The frequent changing of books in the high schools works a hardship on parents of moderate means, especially when they have several children.

Wake up you parents of Webster Groves and St. Louis County. You now have the opportunity to give your children the advantages of the best schools in the United States. Every child has the right to the best weapon, a good and sound education to fight the battle of life. Cast aside the feeling that your friend has a job in the school. If your friend amounts to anything, she will get a better job. We must take advantage of what is offered us by a "Greater St. Louis." One for all and all for one.

MRS. D. I. ZUCKER. 513 East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves.

Paying and Getting. A. LASHLY, of Webster Groves, said in his Chamber of Commerce address: "People living in the incorporated and unincorporated county districts located there largely because conditions were better than in the large cities." What does he mean by "better"? To pay $3.85 taxes in Webster, $12 a year for garbage collection, and other charges? In St. Louis the taxes are $2.58 and garbage collection is one of the things included in the tax charges.

U. S. TO SUGGEST ABOLISHING TARIFF IN EUROPE ONLY

Coolidge and Mellon Decide on Statement in Reply to Recently Issued Financiers' Manifesto.

NO CUT IN AMERICAN DUTIES IS THOUGHT OF International Chamber of Commerce Here Preparing Declaration for High Protection.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. — The American Government is preparing to publicly declare that it does not consider the recent financiers' manifesto against world trade restrictions as applying to the United States.

At the same time the Government is expected to give support to the suggestion that customs barriers among European nations be leveled.

The pronouncement is to be made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who discussed the subject today with President Coolidge. The Secretary advised his chief that he considered the manifesto sound, so far as it applies to Europe, but there could be no thought of lowering the American tariff.

Coincident with the White House conference, it became known that the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, composed of business men who are members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, had prepared a tariff report saying that American business and American labor had come to the "studied decision" that American living standards must be protected and "no action which will tend to lower them can have any other than an unfortunate effect."

The financiers' manifesto, recently made public in New York and Berlin, advocated a leveling of international trade barriers, but made specific reference to no individual nation. It carried the signatures of an imposing group of international business men, including J. P. Morgan.

Reason for Reply. In deciding to set forth clearly the position of the American Government, the President and Secretary Mellon were influenced by continuing speculation whether the suggestions of the financiers were intended to apply to the American protective tariff, as well as to the customs barriers erected between European nations since the World War.

Some of those interested in preparation of the manifesto have said there was no intention to apply the conclusions to the United States, but in other quarters it has been pointed out that nothing in the text of the document excludes this country.

Secretary Mellon told the President today he knew nothing of the manifesto before its publication and while he had not consulted either American or European signers he was certain they had no intention that it should apply to America.

The full text of the protective tariff report prepared by the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce will not be made public until the Stockholm meeting of the international body next June.

Plea for High Tariff in U. S. It became known, however, that it would say that "the American committee believes that the Central Committee (of the International Chamber of Commerce) must recognize that the question of tariff policy to be pursued by a nation is a matter of domestic concern and that each nation must reserve to itself the decision in a matter which is so definitely one of national policy."

EUGENE V. DEBS, PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY FIVE TIMES, DIES

Former Labor Leader Who Led Railway Strike of 1894 Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Last Conscious Act Was to Quote From Poem Containing Lines, "I Am Captain of My Soul."

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Eugene V. Debs is dead.

The indomitable will that carried the veteran Socialist leader through a turbulent career, including a term in prison for obstructing the draft, broke last night under the weight of years and the strain of heart disease, from which he had suffered for 25 years.

Nearing his seventy-first birthday, the five-times nominee of the Socialist party for the presidency died peacefully in a suburban sanitarium, surrounded by the members of his family and leading representatives of the party.

Debs sank into coma last Saturday, coming out of that half-way place between life and death for only a few minutes Sunday, during which he motioned to his wife for a pencil and in a feeble scrawl scratched out W. E. Henly's famous poem "Invictus," ending with the lines, "I am master of my fate, the captain of my soul."

Friends explained that the verse, written by the English author in a hospital, was his lifelong source of inspiration.

Funeral at Terre Haute. The body was started today to Mr. Debs' lifelong home, Terre Haute, Ind. The utmost simplicity surrounded the departure. The body was in a simple, gray coffin, without ornate fittings. It was sent home in the regular baggage car of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad's Dixie Limited. It was accompanied only by members of the family who were at his bedside. The railroad station was thronged, however.

Floral offerings were rushed aboard the train while it was held nearly 30 minutes.

The funeral will be at 2 p. m. Saturday, with the Rev. John Haynes Holmes of New York officiating. Morris Hillquit, New York attorney, will speak in behalf of the International Socialist Labor movement, and Seymour Steadman, Chicago attorney, will speak for the Socialist party. Later the body will be sent to Indianapolis to be cremated.

William H. Henry, executive secretary of the Socialist party, said that he had heard Mrs. Debs speak of a "private funeral" after the public ceremony of Saturday and that he thought it probable that the ashes finally would be interred in a cemetery.

Henry said that he thought the Debs family would be very modest. Mr. Debs owned his home in Terre Haute and some small pieces of property, mostly mortgaged, he said.

Debs suffered a nervous breakdown a month ago and was taken to an Elmhurst sanitarium for rest and treatment. His advanced years and the heart disease left him with little resistance to his complication several weeks ago, tipped the scales completely against him.

Debs was a patient at the same sanitarium in 1922 and his friends recalled the comment he made on his condition at that time: "The newspaper men have to keep pace with modern times. There is a rush about news gathering that we never had before. For example, I appreciate my own unimportance, but when the report was given out that I was ill, the Associated Press sent a representative to find out my exact condition. I suppose they have my obituary already written, but I'm going to prevent its publication as long as possible."

SAFETY COUNCIL TO BE HEARD ON PARKWAY BILL

Aldermen to Allow Them to Present Argument Before Acting on Olive St. Ordinance.

REALTY MEN LEAD FIGHT ON MEASURE

Director Brooks Alone Favors It at Hearing—Safety Strip on Twelfth Blvd. Suggested.

A hearing on the proposed Olive street trolley parkway, from the standpoint of public safety, with members of the Safety Council as speakers, will be held before any decision is reached on the pending measure by the Street Committee of the Board of Aldermen. The Safety Council is supporting the proposal, on the ground that it would reduce the number of traffic accidents.

At a hearing last night, in the Board of Aldermen chamber, the plan approved by the Board of Public Service was upheld by Street Director Brooks only, and was opposed by several speakers representing realty interests. The plan provides for this division of the 100-foot width of the new Olive street: Two roadways each 26 1/4 feet wide, trolley parkway 23 feet wide, two sidewalks each 12 feet wide.

Director Brooks made known that the Board of Public Service plans, if the trolley parkway should be built and should prove satisfactory on Olive, to install similar strips on the northern and southern extensions of Twelfth boulevard, wherever street car tracks are to be laid under existing franchises.

"Automobile traffic and street car traffic, like oil and water, do not mix," Brooks said. He cited Canal street in New Orleans, Pennsylvania avenue in Washington, Huntington avenue in Boston and the parked strip on Delmar boulevard, where street car tracks are to be laid under existing franchises.

"Says Strip Would Save Time. "Cheerful street, which has no car tracks, carries more automobiles than Market, Pine and Olive streets combined at present," Brooks said. "In the proposed arrangement of Olive street we would be giving 53 feet to automobile passengers, who would be not more than 25 per cent of the public using the street, and 28 feet to street car passengers, who are 75 per cent or more of the users of the street."

"The Olive street widening is not being paid for by the Olive street property owners alone. The district taxed extends east to Third street and west to Union boulevard. These property owners will get no return for their taxes, unless a saving in time is made possible. This neutral strip would mean a saving in time. Street cars in this strip could be run 15 to 18 miles an hour, whereas at present they can make only 9.2 miles an hour. Along the Delmar boulevard neutral strip, west of Kingshighway, the street cars make 14 miles an hour, on the rest of Delmar boulevard they make nine miles."

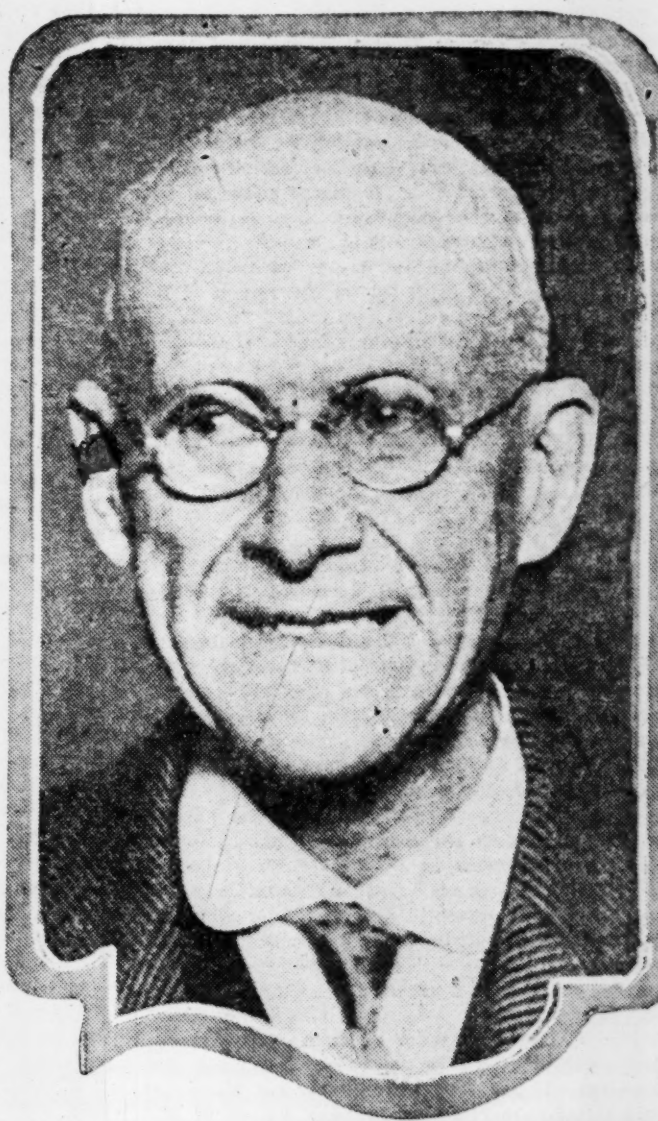

Fears Delay. As to the division of cost of the improvement, Brooks said the owners of abutting property were to pay $1,088,421, or 42.8 per cent of the whole cost, $2,633,500, and that the benefited district and the city would pay $7.2 per cent or $1,555,079.

If the present ordinance does not pass, Brooks said, it will take six to eleven months to get another one through, and the improvement will be delayed by that length of time.

As to the matter of safety, he said there were 86 accidents in 1924-25 on the 5200-foot section of Delmar which has the neutral strip, and 128 accidents on the 2800-foot section east of Kingshighway, and in 1925-26, 96 accidents along the strip and 131 in the other district east of it.

W. W. Higgs, president of the Real Estate Exchange, was one of the opposing speakers. He told of the work done by the exchange for the Olive street widening, in getting the approval of property owners, and in the bond issue campaign. The idea of a trolley parkway was not mentioned, then, he said.

Opposition Argument. "It is not accurate to say that the owners of abutting property pay only 42.8 per cent of this improvement," Higgs said. "For four to five years they have suffered the loss of rents and the condition of stagnation, through pendency of this change. They have lost millions."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Music Courses at Washington U.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

KNOWING your interest in music in St. Louis, I wish to take a little space to inform the music lovers of this city that they are being given the opportunity at this time to decide whether or not they desire theoretical music courses to be given at Washington University. If the public enrolls in sufficiently large numbers for the courses now offered, it is not too much to say that eventually we may have a school of music at Washington University comparable with the music schools of other large universities. St. Louis music teachers are agreed that this city needs just such a school as only a university can provide, one that sets a high standard and confers degrees. At present students have the opportunity to study harmony under the eminent composer, Mr. Ernest R. Kroeger, and the fees for tuition are so reasonable as to prevent no one from enrolling. It is not too late yet to register for this semester. Students have often in the past lamented the fact that Washington University did not offer music courses. Now the courses are being provided, and it is up to us to take advantage of them; otherwise the university will abandon music altogether.

Cochran's Service to War Veterans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I AM a disabled soldier and have lost my speech owing to throat trouble. I have been suffering for years.
Last January I was sent to Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., as a patient and was told to see John J. Cochran, secretary to Congressman Harry B. Hawes. I did so; he represented me before the board at the hospital who decided I needed more evidence. Cochran secured the name of the doctor who treated me in the army in 1918 and 1919 and secured the evidence. Finally they sent my case to John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore and they held my disability was not service connected. It was also later sent to Mayo Brothers and finally after constant fighting and filing of convincing evidence they decided to pay me John J. Cochran is a friend to ex-service men, has helped many. I owe him everything and I hope he is elected to represent the people of the Eleventh District. I am only one of hundreds he has helped.

Up-to-the-Minute News.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
ON Oct. 18 I was obliged to be in Chicago on business, and after disposing of it I had a little time left before the 3 o'clock train for St. Louis and dropped into the Federal Building to listen to the investigation by Senator Reed of the political slush fund in Illinois.
I heard him cross-examine Mr. Simpson, president of Marshall-Field & Co., and others, and then caught the 3 o'clock train for St. Louis. At some town about 50 or 60 miles north of St. Louis a newsboy got on the train and distributed the Post-Dispatch which contained a full account of what I had just heard in Chicago of that same afternoon.
It struck me as amazing that a newspaper printed in St. Louis containing a full account of an event which happened in Chicago could be handed to a person who heard the original a few hours before in Chicago while he was on the train for St. Louis. It certainly speaks well for the enterprise of the Post-Dispatch to be able to distribute the news so quickly.

Negroes Want Good Homes.

THE question concerning Negro housing is one of the most important concerning that particular group of people at this time. If the Negro chooses to live in a house that he is able to pay for why shouldn't he? If he labors and struggles to have a decent home and a respectable neighborhood to live in, why shouldn't he have it? If the white man doesn't care to progress and live in a better home and is content to live in a rundown neighborhood (such as the Negro generally rents or even buys in) why blame the Negro? The run down secondhand house the Negro generally buys is a treat to him when he manages to get one. For when he is renting he is forced to live in dirty, dilapidated houses and pay big rent at that. Bigger rent than the white people paid who lived in the houses when they were in good condition.
There are some just as clean, respectable Negroes east of Grand avenue or in the lower part of the city as there are farther out. But their salary or means of making a living are such as to prevent them from living in other parts of the city. I have a daughter attending Teachers' College who would be glad to live in a better house than I now live in but the houses I would like are beyond my means. But if I am fortunate enough to better my condition I don't want to feel that some one can sell or rent me a house and another fellow can come along and run me out because I am a Negro. I am as clean about my home as any of the white neighbors I may have, and cleaner than those whose houses I have rented since they have left. If every fellow tries to progress and will move up it will leave room for the others behind.

HARMONY AND FAIR PLAY.

HOW THE KLAN WORKS.

One thing stands out conspicuously in the amazing testimony of former Cyclops Hugh Emmons of South Bend, Ind., before the Senate investigating committee. This conspicuous thing was that the Ku Klux Klan was in politics in Indiana up to its neck, striving to control all the offices, with its ultimate goal the control of the national Government.

Much of Emmons' testimony is purely ex parte, and no opportunity has yet been offered to sift it. The full scope of the exposure of Klan activities must therefore await further testimony.

It is clear, however, from Emmons' testimony, which is supported by other testimony, that the Klan organized in Indiana for the purpose of controlling the politics and the government of Indiana. It spent huge sums of money to control politics and dictated to its members what candidates they should support and how they should vote. It offered bribes for the support of its favorite candidates. Emmons estimated from his own knowledge of the money received at Klan headquarters, and the money expended, that $5,562,000 had been expended for the control of Indiana politics. He said his own county klavern, at South Bend, sent $50,000 to State headquarters. Emmons declared that the Klan was ordered to support its good friends, Senator Watson and Senator Robinson. He testified that the Klan tried to control the Senate of the United States, that it was through its work that Mayfield of Texas was seated, and that through the Klan's counsel, Zumbrunn, persistent influences were brought to bear on Senators for the purpose of carrying out Klan plans. He declared that the Klan plan was to elect Senator Watson president; which would enable it "to march down Pennsylvania avenue and through the White House."

The general exposure of Klan activities in Indiana harmonizes with the exposure of its activities everywhere. It does not work in the open, but in secret. Its meetings are held in secret. Its members are hooded and masked. Their identities are concealed. It aims to set up an invisible government, back of the established constitutional government, above the law, seeking the control of government for its own intolerant, lawless purposes. It demands the proscription of citizens on account of race, color or religion. It demands that its own members be protected and promoted, and all those whom it puts outside of the pale shall be proscribed and persecuted. It defends with both money and influence its own officers and members who are guilty of crime and lawlessness.

This is the secret order which menaces America and seeks to overthrow the guarantees of the Constitution. It has been scotched but not killed. It still raises its horrid head in many states. In Missouri its Grand Dragon has dared openly to select one candidate for the United States Senate—Senator Williams—and to try to control the politics of Missouri, the State's representatives in the Senate and House, and its officers. We know from the revelations of its activities and motives wherever they have been exposed what its purposes in politics are.

EUGENE VICTOR DEBS.

Eugene V. Debs was a unique and picturesque figure, a successful unsuccessful leader of men, successful from the standpoint of achieving the admiration and enthusiastic adherence of millions; unsuccessful in his attempts to do anything practical, either in the field of economics or of politics.
Starting in life with nothing but a common school education, working as a locomotive fireman, he was elected to the Indiana Legislature in 1884, and from 1893 to 1897 was president of the American Railway Union. In this capacity he conducted the great railroad strike of 1894, which resulted in his being imprisoned for contempt of court, charged with disobeying an injunction. He pleaded innocence of any crime and requested to be tried by a jury and permitted to summon witnesses in his own defense, the plea being disallowed.

Always a champion of the under dog, Debs had a capacity for getting into trouble with the authorities. Fanatically pacifist, he failed to see that America had the best of reasons for entering the World War. His agitation against enlistment and the draft was based on sincere convictions but, under the circumstances, amounted to treason, and brought him a 10-year penitentiary sentence in 1918. While in durandville, so great was his popularity among his labor followers and others that he received a vote of 915,302 as candidate on the Socialist ticket for the presidency of the United States, the fifth time he had stood for this office. At that crisis, socialism in America may be said to have been at its ebb, and only the feeling that Debs was suffering for his principles, however mistaken, could have caused this protest at the ballot box. Debs was pardoned by President Harding in 1920, but his citizenship was not restored.

Always cheerful under adverse circumstances, Debs busied himself while in prison with aiding his fellow sufferers. He was one of the happiest of martyrs. In the Socialist movement he leaves no successor. American labor is moving away from his theories to a conservatism with which he had little sympathy. As a man, his devotion to his ideals will be remembered when his political activities are forgotten.

Emma Goldman, who has arrived in Canada, seems to be traveling upon the theory being put out by the Soviets automatically puts her back into the United States.

EMIL JANNINGS.

Emil Jannings, the German movie star, who has last seen here in "Variety," has come to the United States to make some films. Jannings is not a prepossessing person. He is, one may judge, 40 or over. He has a porky body and a double chin. Since he fails utterly to measure up to the standards of physical pulchritude set by the American movie industry, we do not understand why it is interested in him. Jannings is a star in Germany because he is a superb actor; but in this country good acting is not a requirement for stardom in the movies. Most of the movie plots are so rapid that they are best enacted by beautiful morons. Jannings being neither beautiful nor a moron, it is possible he is to do a movie in which his fine talents will be utilized? After seeing John Barrymore recently do a mediocre imitation of Douglas Fairbanks, we doubt it.

THE FREE TRADE MANIFESTO.

The White House spokesman did not seem impressed with that unusual manifesto about tariff barriers issued by the leading financiers and industrialists of Europe and the United States. It was said at the White House that persons who lend money between nations naturally are in favor of practically free trade. Doubt was expressed that much could be done to stimulate European trade without jeopardizing the position of the United States and its standard of living.

There is some point in the imputation that the money lenders whose names are signed to the manifesto, by virtue of their profession, are interested in the abolition of tariff barriers. Aside from that, however, the manifesto presents arguments whose truth and soundness are not affected by the source from which they come.

The coolness of the manifesto's reception at the White House is not surprising, since it constitutes a powerful criticism of one of the administration's major policies, namely, the maintenance of a colossal tariff wall around the United States. The manifesto, moreover, elevates what is now a domestic problem of harassing proportions into an international problem. It adds to internal arguments for tariff reform the plea that there can be no recovery in Europe until politicians realize that "our neighbors are our customers and that their prosperity is a condition of our own well-being."

The manifesto sets out that trade between nations is sick. It has not recovered since the war because tariff walls have been erected not only by the United States but by other countries, with this effect: "Prices have risen, artificial dearth has been created. Production as a whole has been diminished. Credit has contracted and currencies have depreciated." International trade, upon which the prosperity of the world is based, barred from its natural channels, is drying up, and this distorts the world's economic topography.

No direct reference is made in the manifesto to war debts, but the problem of trade between nations is indissolubly linked with the debts. Senator Underwood, recently returned from Europe, said it would be impossible for the United States to collect its war debts unless the tariff is lowered to a reasonable competitive basis. This must be patent to everyone, even to the politicians. It is primer economics, and the authors of the manifesto undoubtedly had it in mind when they said that if dealings between neighbor nations are checked, "their power to pay their debts diminishes, and their power to purchase our goods is reduced."

The manifesto was issued by great bankers and industrialists, but the policy it outlines would redound to the benefit of plain people on both sides of the ocean.

Rupert Hughes is not a pleasant person. He has turned the life of George Washington inside out, but the country will continue looking at the outside of the monument.

OUR NEW FIVE-DOLLAR SNOOPERS.

According to an Associated Press Dispatch from Chicago, Prohibition Administrator Yellowley has extended the espionage system of the enforcement service by employing private informers at $5 a day, giving them no credentials, however, and for the preservation of secrecy, forbidding them to appear at headquarters. Already, it is proudly announced that by this method captures of illicit liquor to the value of $125,000 have been made.

It seems inconceivable to any self-respecting man that such a practice could have the sanction of the United States Government. Whatever the zeal of the enforcement service may be, it is perfectly obvious that an undisciplined, wholly uncontrolled spying personnel must be recruited from the lowest, and meanest characters, actuated by the basest of motives; and that such a system does infinitely more harm in abetting the satisfaction of private vengeance, and in stirring up suspicion and hatred, even, it may be, within the family circle, than can possibly be outweighed by the capture of illicit liquor.

The vicious nature of the practice is further emphasized in the fact that a commissioned official is forbidden to use evidence in a criminal case which he himself has obtained by fraud or deceit, in lieu of a search warrant, but evidence is usable if it finds its way into his hands from another, even though that other committed burglary to obtain it. In an organization which has stooped to the practices of the Prohibition Enforcement Service, it is not at all unlikely that private informers would be used in this manner to defeat the constitutional rights of citizens.

Quite aside from constitutional questions, however, the practice is essentially despicable, and is calculated only to bring the prohibition law and the Government itself into greater contempt.

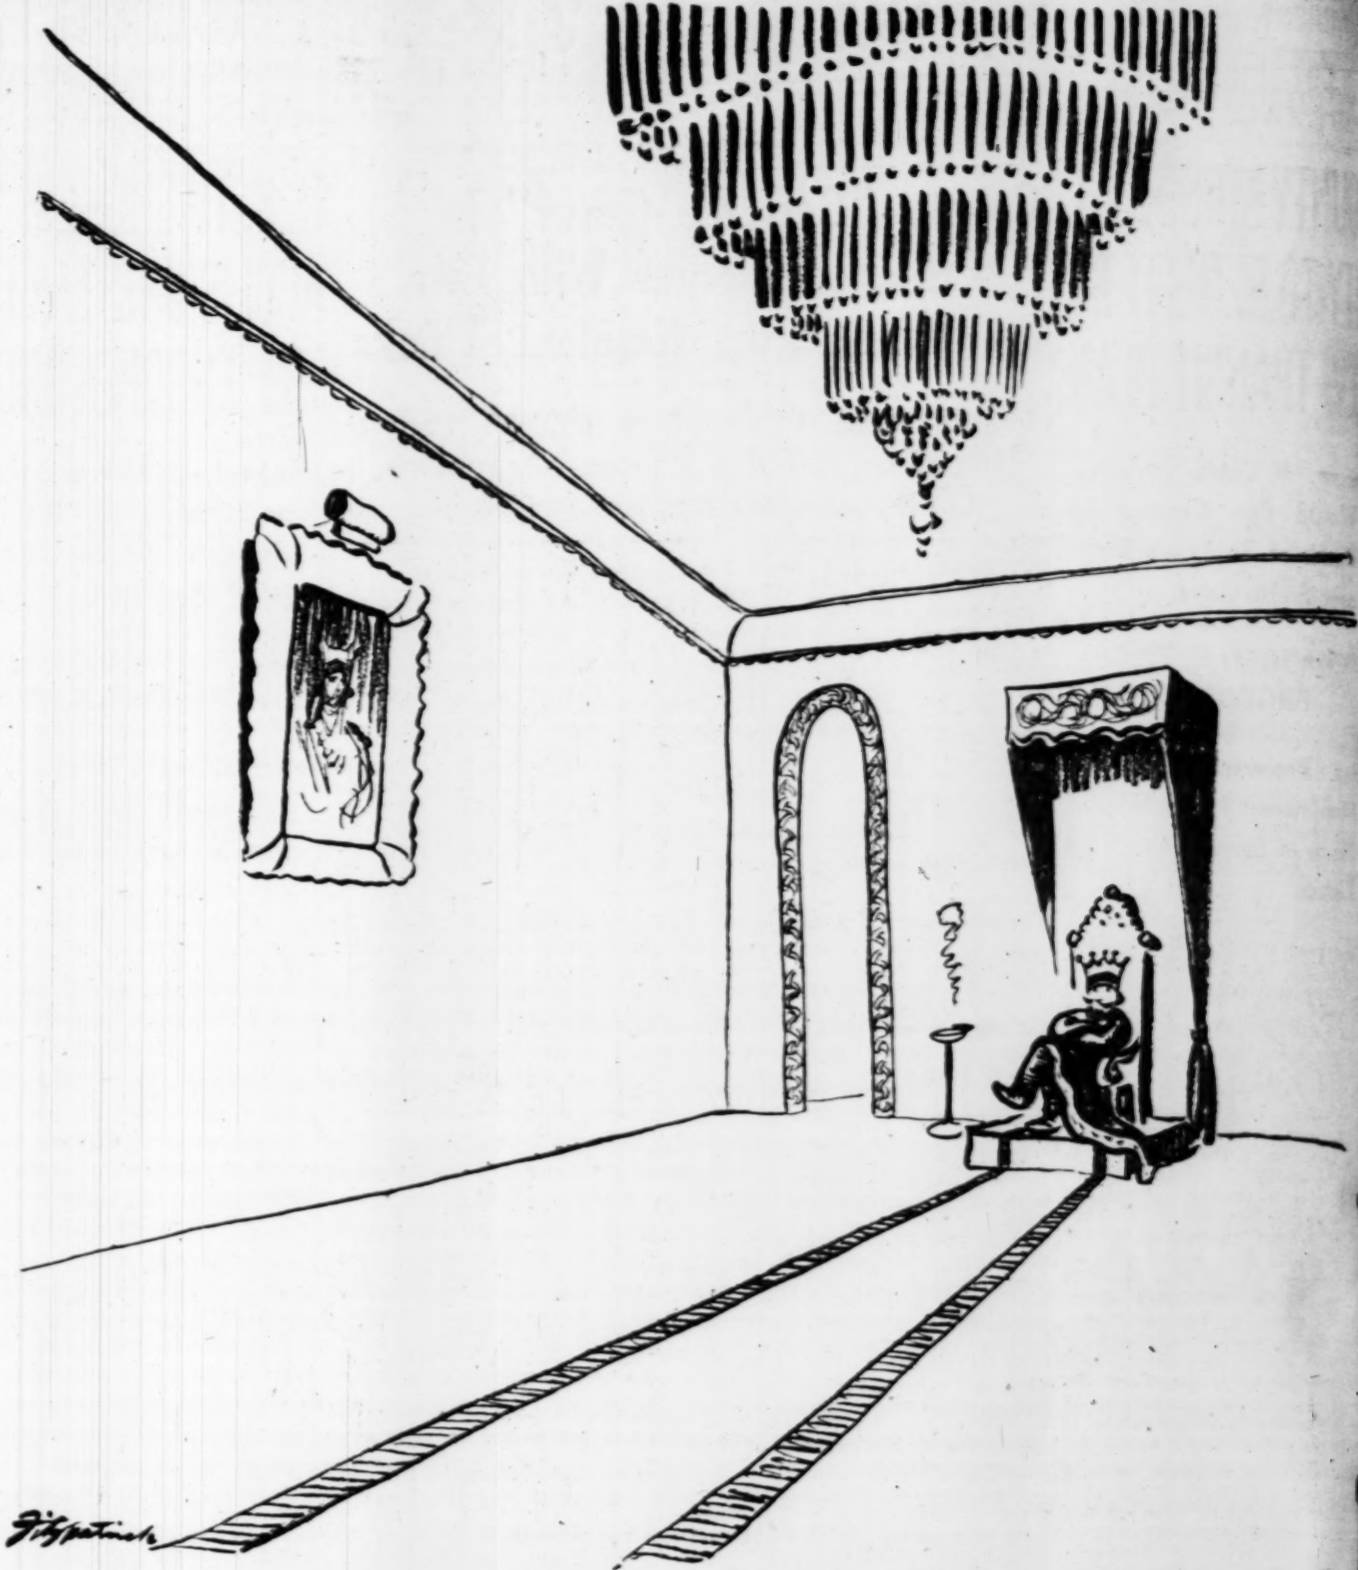

A Scotch banker says the world is engaged in an orgy of spending, but he seemed to be in entirely good conscience about it. The Scotch didn't start it.

It is not fair to say that there is no way to get rid of prohibition. There is the Norway.

The Republican party of Indiana is beginning to see that its wedding with the Ku Klux Klan was a messalliance.

BALLADE OF REFRESHING FRANK-NESS.

There's nothing new beneath the sun—
A truth discovered years ago—
Ere Adam's earthly course was run
He had enjoyed our present show;
All has been said that man can say,
For fancies fresh do not repine;
Old Homer took the better way,
He cribbed his stuff, as I crib mine.

What can be said about first love
That poets old have left unsaid?
The glory of the skies above
Was sung by poets long since dead;
Though you may rack your weary brain
To make your thought with freshness shine,
Old Homer spared himself the pain,
He cribbed his stuff, as I crib mine.

The thing you say was said before,
But why not have a second say?
In varied form we think once more
The thoughts that worried Adam gray;
You can present a hackneyed thought
In your own style as your own line;
Old Homer never for freshness sought,

L'ENVOI.

Sweet Prince, for inspiration some Put trust in books, and some in wine;
But when their duller moments come
They crib their stuff, as I crib mine.

THE NATIONAL UNREST.

Son: Father, who were the Rough Riders?
Father: They were the first people to use Fords.

A fruit company on Chicago's municipal pier presses your cider while you wait from apples of your own selection. Of course there's a catch in it; you have to drink the cider right away.

The rector of an English church has promised 15-minute sermons so long as the coal shortage lasts. We do not know if the congregation prayed for a continuance of the coal strike or not.

A Minnesota hotel lacked the atmosphere desired by Lou's Hill Jr., heir to the Hill railroads. As we never tire of writing headlines, we present, "Hill heir prefers hill air."

The chairman of the Republican national Congressional Committee says that the Democrats cannot find an issue. Has the G. O. P. become invisible?

Gov. Baker, we learn, is to eat much at a T. M. C. A. dinner. In the meantime, Ogden Mills continues his campaign against Al Smith on milk.

Gen. Andrews foresees the day when each man will manufacture his own alcoholic beverages. But would you call that foresight?

In the course of an attack on Harry B. Hawes, former Gov. Hyde says that he knows of nothing dumber than Balaam's ass. We do, teacher; an ass who opens his mouth and then will not say anything definite.

It begins to appear that no one is to be allowed to sit on the Pirates' bench.

THE FIVE AND DIME.

Pocket flasks, and only a dime. Short, squat, flask, of a proper shape, and with such low visibility that they could never be seen protruding from a hip pocket.

Glass funnels, glass does not corrode. Aluminum funnels, of all sizes, and to fit all-necks.

"How does this siphon apparatus work?"
"Put this end in the crock, and that end in the bottle."

Cork screws. "Memories, memories, dreams of long ago." Bottle openers, too, including a wall model.

"Gimme four dozen of these here corks."
"How big a cork will fit a quart bottle?"
"What's this thing?"
"A capper."

"How does it work?"
Caps.

"Will that glass hold a bottle of beer?"
Wine and high ball glasses, frankly called such. No hypocrisy here.

Fonies are beverage glasses. And it does seem a bit late in the season for iced tea glasses.

Whereas those glasses graduated, "Ladies," "Gentlemen," and toward the top, an animal resembling a hog, were never intended for anything but what the buyer puts in them.

If half these tumblers were intended to hold water, I'm the Ahkoon of Swat.

Antiques? Too cheap for antiques. Souvenirs, perhaps. "But the tender grace of a day that is dead will never come back to me."

Give the people what they want. Prohibition is a success.

BOOK REVIEW.

"Distressing Dialogues," by Nancy Boyd, are convincing proof that women have been blessed with a sense of humor. The book is a collection of clever, satirical and short sketches on the follies we have not, and which we wish our neighbors did not have.

A second "Miss K" has been brought into the McPherson case. This gives the spectators another X to see.

Indiana politics will be all Jimmed up.

As Emma Goldman is married to a Scotchman, and hence, a subject of King George, and as she wants to lecture, we favor letting her in as a British lecturer. She says she likes America, which is an added reason.

We fear that Sir John Fraser does not understand America. Mob psychology and curiosity explain our parades and fusts over celebrities. As to secret societies and our need of a king, every American is a king, and lodge night gives him a chance to don the regalia of office.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

NEWSPAPER ENGLISH.

FRANCIS F. BEIRNE in "American Speech" for October.
THERE is a general but false impression that newspapers are indifferent to the English used in their columns. As a matter of fact, the whole machinery of the editorial staff is devised for the purpose of conveying the news to the public in clear and decent language. There is, of course, a wide margin between the ideal and the actual accomplishment, and the machinery varies in strength and quality in accordance with the size and wealth and quality of the newspaper. Good English is expensive. Nor must it be forgotten that the greatest enemy of perfect achievement is the element of time. Newspapers are produced under a continual strain. The editors are calling for copy and the writer must make more than superficial revision. Up to the last minute the work of correction goes on. Attention may be called to a single error on a page. "Was" should have been "were." The editor notes the correction goes to the composing room. The compositor beats out a new line on his linotype machine while the make-up man is busy told to hold the page. The form, a page of flat type, is unlocked and the corrected line is slipped in. The form then goes to the stereotypers, who place it on the steam table and makes a new matrix, into which the liquid lead is poured to form a round plate ready to fit on the press cylinder. In the meantime the presses have been stopped. The old plate is removed and the new plate substituted. A dozen men, working with material so heavy that it is difficult to move, have devoted time and energy to the task of changing "was" into "were." All of it has been done in the interest of good newspaper English.

THANKSGIVING PUDDING.

FROM the Philadelphia Record.
FROM California comes the statement that prohibition enforcement officers there have announced that a number of bakeries have received permits to make mince, rum and other liquors because they are classified as "food products." It is such an interpretation of the law that will be equally entitled to a restoration of the oldtime snappiness in mince pie and plum puddings. In view of the approaching Thanksgiving and Christmas the one that seems deserving of an official pronouncement from Washington, where will the brandy and rum come from even if they can be legitimately used?

THEY ARE THE NEWSPAPERS.

FROM the Chicago Tribune.
THE men who make the newspapers gather the news, set it in type, manage its business affairs, direct its editorial policy, solicit its advertising and are the newspaper. Their characters and personalities are in the newspaper and the public shall be perpetuated. There is only one way—through the men who make them.

WAGE RISE FOR SHOP CRAFTS
 Pennsylvania Railroad Grants Increase to 43,000 Workers.
 PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—The Pennsylvania Railroad has announced an increase of 3 cents an hour in wages of all classes of shop crafts employees. The increase is retroactive to Oct. 16. Approximately 43,000 men are affected. The wage conferences, held in Pittsburgh, were concluded Tuesday. The conferences were conducted under the Pennsylvania plan of employees' representation, the committees representing the employees being elected by the employees from among themselves.

SUSPECT IN $320,000 SWINDLE ARRESTED
 Money Given Him by Pittsburgh Labor Bank for Bonds Stolen, He Says.
 By the Associated Press.
 PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 21.—Charles E. Knapp, alleged bond swindler, is in the hands of police today, but all but a fraction of the $320,000 he is charged with stealing still is missing.
 Sought for nearly a week after his disappearance, supposedly with the money, nearly a third of it funds of the closed Brotherhood Savings & Trust Co., Knapp was arrested, with his wife, in a cabin in a wild, mountainous section of Fayette County, last night. He had less than $600.
 Early today, police said, Knapp declared the money had been taken from him at pistol point by a man "named Russe," introduced to him as a Chicagoan.
 According to this story, authorities announced, "Russe" met Knapp last Friday, shortly after officers of the Brotherhood Bank had turned over to him the $320,000 contributed by the bank and various individuals in prepayment for Liberty bonds Knapp was alleged to have offered at less than half price. Knapp said he entered "Russe's" car and was driven to a park, where "Russe" drew a revolver, took the money, forced him from the car and drove away.
 Afraid then to return to the bank officers without the money, Knapp said he fled.
 According to this account, Knapp was introduced to "Russe" by Frank Guimario, arrested here Sunday in connection with the case, and later held on charges of engineering a swindle, with Knapp, at Clearfield, Pa.
 The alleged swindle has resulted in the arrest also of three bank officers and a broker, all of whom are free on bond pending a hearing tomorrow on charges growing out of the affair.

WOMAN IS ARRESTED IN HALL-MILLS CASE

Choir Member Denies She Told Rector's Wife of Affair With Singer.

By the Associated Press.
SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 21.—The seventh arrest in the Hall-Mills murder case was made yesterday when Mrs. Minnie Clark, member of the choir of the Church of St. John the Evangelist in New Brunswick was taken into custody as an accessory before the fact.

Four persons are under indictment for the murder four years ago of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills. They are the rector's widow, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall; her brothers, Willie and Henry Stevens, and a cousin, Henry de la Bruyere Carpenter. Dr. Hall was rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist.

Mrs. Clark was arrested at her home. Her husband, Addison Clark, made no protest and did not accompany his wife here when she was arraigned.

County Judge Cleary denied a motion to quash the charge on the ground that the arrest was made on supposition.

Mrs. Clark denies charges. Mrs. Clark, who was said to have told Mrs. Hall of the illicit relations between Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, denied this. She also denied that she was concealing information about the case.

Plans of Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, to exhume the body of Mrs. Mills were delayed by the action of Dr. John L. Suydam, Middlesex County physician, who refused to allow the exhumation without an order from the Supreme Court.

Two witnesses were questioned by the prosecutor at Toms River, Ocean County, regarding the movements of Henry Stevens on the night of Sept. 14, 1922, when the murders were committed. Stevens has insisted he was fishing at Lavallette that night, but, according to the prosecutor, the persons who were supposed to support his alibi were not able to swear to the date.

The Somerset County grand jury meets today to consider evidence against Mrs. Clark. Besides Mrs. Clark, Felix di Martini is held in Brooklyn where he is resisting extradition to New Jersey as an accessory after the murders, and William Phillips of New Brunswick is held on bond as a material witness.

ELECTRICITY NEEDED ON FARM, SAYS EDISON

On 47th Anniversary of Filament Light, He Declares Field of Invention Is Unlimited.

By the Associated Press.
WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 21.—Today was the forty-seventh birthday of the electric light. Thomas A. Edison, who invented it, is convinced that invention blazes the way to universal peace.

"Invention has not led to war," he said. "Invention has produced a reasoning and a questioning age. People are becoming, because of the changes brought about by invention, more intelligent, and will not stand for exploitation by Emperors and Kings and societies. There is more reasoning and questioning today than ever before. We are in the process of discarding those things which in the past have been breeders of war and oppression."

"The field is unlimited. If I were to begin my career over again I would turn to electric light, heat and chemical reactions. The young man so inclined should have no hesitation in taking up invention as a profession, provided he has imagination and the will to work." Edison took time from his work to recall the days that followed his discovery of a loop of carbonized sewing thread, sealed in a bulb from which the air had been pumped, and connected with electric current, would burn for 48 hours.

On New Year's eve, 1879, he said, 3000 persons traveled to Menlo Park to view the new lamp from which developed one of the world's greatest industries, but it was not until 1882 that the first central generating station in New York, was placed in operation.

Much has been done since that day in developing electricity, but even more remains to be done, he declared. Farm power he believes the most pressing need, meaning by that the extension of transmission lines so that electrical power can be available to every farmer at low cost.

"No one can tell where experimentation in the various fields of invention will lead," he said. "The hellum atom has been broken into atoms of hydrogen. It is a theoretical step at present, but it has great possibilities. How great, no man can tell. You remember when Faraday discovered a means of getting electricity from induced magnetism and was asked what good his discovery was. He replied: 'What good is a baby?'"

Although Edison was born 54 years ago, he told his interviewer with a smile that he really was 135 years old.

"The average man," he explained, "would need that many years to put in as many hours work as I have in my 54."

The exhibits introduced by the carriers, which purported to show that rates in other localities are higher than to St. Louis, as "ridiculous," and said they were "hand-picked" to justify the railroads in their application for higher rates to East St. Louis.

Waffle appeared as a witness for the Perry Coal Co., owner of large mine properties in Southern Illinois and a leader in the movement for obtaining lower coal freight rates to St. Louis.

He was preceded by another witness for the Perry Coal Co., George Cummins, traffic commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce of Davenport, Ia. Cummins yesterday morning completed his testimony, which dealt largely with a comparison of rates to St. Louis with those in effect to cities in nine other Middle Western states. His exhibits showed rates to St. Louis to be higher as a general rule.

WILLIAMS STARTS FINAL SWING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MARYVILLE, Mo., Oct. 21.—Senator George H. Williams yesterday started his final swing over the State in his campaign to return to the United States Senate. He spoke five times. Two talks were scheduled—one here and the other at Tarkio last night. He made informal addresses at a luncheon given him and Mrs. Williams by Nodaway County Republicans and at a tea here for Mrs. Williams, and on the way to Tarkio, at Burlington Junction, addressed more than 100 persons waiting to greet him.

"I expect to be elected," Senator Williams told his hosts at the Maryville luncheon. The Senator said the situation "was good" and called on his supporters to keep up their vigilance. In his afternoon speech to several hundred persons Williams played his Democratic opponent, Harry B. Hawes, and his party in regard to their stand on the World Court, contrasting it with the party's position in 1920. It is very significant, the Senator charged, that Hawes should call to the aid of Senator Caraway, Heflin and Harrison, all of whom supported the World Court.

We have a right now to know where Hawes stands on these questions. Senator Williams said. He devoted a part of his talk to wet and dry question, reiterating it was nonpolitical in its nature.

At Tarkio Williams urged all who believe in law enforcement to vote "No" on proposition No. 4.

HYDE QUESTIONS WAR SERVICE OF HARRY B. HAWES

Former Gov. Hyde, speaking before the St. Louis Republican Women's Club at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce today, defended himself from Democratic criticism which followed his attack on Harry B. Hawes at the Republican campaign opening at Jefferson City Sept. 15, when he asked whether "Hawes had received $100,000 for bringing an estimable lady from Germany during the war."

The Hyde remark had become an issue of the campaign, reports having been that many Germans had been drawn to support of Hawes because of Hyde's remark. The former Governor, in his defense today, changed his statement somewhat, leaving out all reference to Germany, and recalling that his statement concerned the accompanying of an estimable lady "home from Spain." His decision to refer to the matter today was reached after a long conference this morning with former Mayor Kiel, chairman of the Republican State Committee.

About 300 at Luncheon.
The luncheon was attended by about 300 men and women, among whom there were several Negroes at the tables.

Coming to his defense of reference to Hawes' action in bringing Mrs. Adolphus Busch back to her family from Germany, where she was visiting when the war began, Hyde said:

"I inquired what the war-time service of Mr. Hawes had been. I was informed that it consisted largely in conducting a lady home from Spain, for which he received an enormous fee. With this in mind, I inquired what inducement to Democratic harmony existed in his having received $100,000 as a consequence of the war."

Still Making Inquiry.
"I am still inquiring. I want to know whether a man is entitled to boast of war service when he spent the greater part of the war period traveling to Spain, meeting and accompanying a lady home. Other men spent dreary months in training camps and at comments under rigorous discipline or scratches and cooties and digging the mud out of their hair, some of them paying the supreme price at much less recompense. They do not boast of their service."

Hyde then delivered an eulogy of Mrs. Busch.

"I said nothing disparaging of the lady. I did not intend to bring her name into the political field, and, therefore, did not mention her. Mrs. Busch is a lady of broad culture and great womanly charm. She is an honored guest of a family whose name is known over the entire country, a family noted for ability and which built up the greatest business of its kind in the world. No question as to Mrs. Busch, or her family, was raised."

Question Raised by Hyde.
The question I raised and still raise, is whether the Democratic harmonizers believe in boasting of a war service which was required with a prince's ransom for a pleasant trip to Spain and return.

"I did not know until recently that Mr. Hawes did not receive his commission as a Major until after he had returned home from Spain and what his war service while in uniform was. I do not know now."

"Such is the incident which has been twisted and perverted and such is the matter which will bring the mighty Reed back to chew and emulsate and misinterpret."

The truth of the matter is that the Government of the United States should have been able and willing through its own diplomatic channels to provide safe passage for the lady and all other Americans who were marooned in foreign lands, back to their own country.

Challenge to Reed.
"Since the matter is up, I cannot resist saying that it was not the party of George Williams but the party of Harry Hawes which made a seven months' trip necessary, and which heaped indignities upon the lady when she landed."

"If Senator Reed is to be called back to twist and misinterpret, I want him to explain whether he thinks any man should boast of his war service, when that man made $100,000 out of the hardships and the travail which the war entailed."

Hyde continued his references to Senator Reed with:

"Today Jim Reed is a great and righteous investigator. I am offering $5 a head to any man or woman who can show me that Jim Reed ever condemned stealing an election in Kansas City or election huggery in St. Louis."

Hawes' Record Attacked.
Taking the Democratic campaign slogan, "Vote for Men With Records," as a text, Hyde attacked Hawes' record as president of the Police Board from 1898 until 1903. "During the five years of Mr. Hawes' membership on the St. Louis Police Board," Hyde said, "elections were corrupted; legal voters were browbeaten and run away from the polls. Organized gangs of crooks, thugs and thieves ran riot and terrorized citizens."

Gangs known as Indians went about in bands, repeating and slugging.

Hyde quoted editorials from the Globe-Democrat, the Star and the old Republic, and newspaper interviews by the late John C. Roberts, the late Norman J. Coleman and the Rev. Robert A. Holland, rector of St. George's Church, in support of his attack. Those he quoted charges Hawes with responsibility for the election outrages.

"All of this Mr. Hawes says is old stuff," Hyde said. "It all occurred during his administration of the Police Department, or while he was a candidate. It is part of his record."

Quotes Statement of Hawes.
Hyde then quoted Hawes as having said in the 1924 campaign: "If St. Louis wants a Democratic Mayor in the spring, elect Nelson Governor this fall," placing the construction on the statement that Hawes meant that if Nelson was elected he would appoint a Democratic Police Board and an Election Board which would permit "Butler Hawes Indians again to be employed" to put the Democrats back in power in St. Louis.

Mayor Miller, whose attendance at the luncheon was his first public appearance in the campaign, spoke briefly at the conclusion of Hyde's speech, saying that it was an inspiration for greater efforts.

TEAM REFUSES TO RIDE BUS
School Football Players Object to 112-Mile Trip.
By the Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Pa., Oct. 21.—Nineteen members of the East High School football squad today stood firm on their refusal to comply with the principal's order to travel 112 miles by bus next Saturday to play a game with Newcastle. The players were willing to go by train, but the principal said money could be saved by bus transportation.
He stated that if the men refused to go by bus they would not go at all, and would be barred from all school athletics in the future.

SUCCESSFUL TEST OF NEW WIRELESS DEVICE
Marconi Beam System Handles 200 Words a Minute Across Atlantic.
By the Associated Press.
MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—Direct communication between Montreal and London by the Marconi beam wireless system was successfully inaugurated today.
Messages were exchanged between the offices of the company in the two cities at a speed of from 150 to 200 words a minute. The reception here was perfect.
(The Marconi beam system directs the radio waves in a limited path toward a given objective instead of radiating them in all directions, as in ordinary wireless transmission.)
Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
(Copyright, 1926.)
LONDON, Oct. 21.—Semi-secret, cheap, high speed wireless communication under executive control of the British Government will be started next Monday when transmitting stations at Bodmin and Bridgewater will be opened for communication with corresponding stations in Canada. It is officially announced here.
Within the next few months stations will be added near Cape Town, South Africa, Melbourne, Australia, and Bombay, India.
All stations will be operated on the Marconi short-wave beam principle, which is the property of the British Government. The Bodmin and Bridgewater stations have passed a rigorous postoffice test extending over seven days. It is stated officially that a speed of 1250 letters a minute in each direction, or 2500 letters a minute over a complete circuit, has been maintained for many hours continuously. Heretofore the highest speed has been 500 letters (about 100 words) a minute.
From this it is assumed that Marconi has developed a way of transmitting more than one stream of impulses on a set wave length in the same manner that telegraph and telephone lines are made to carry four messages simultaneously.
By the Marconi beam principle, reflectors are used to concentrate the electrical wave into a narrow beam of wireless energy at the transmitting station and to shoot it at the receiving aerial. Although the Daily Express asserts this method insures secrecy, engineers are of the opinion that interception of messages in a band of about 150 miles in the path between transmitter and receiver may be possible.
This all-British chain is the answer to virtual American control of international wireless communication through the Radio Corporation of America and the affiliated Marconi companies.
The Marconi Co. is now developing commercial wireless telegraph services on the beam principle. The company holds a license from the British Postoffice to conduct wireless telegraph service with certain continental countries and all other foreign countries outside Europe. In addition to the existing Marconi stations, at Dorchester is nearly completed for communication with North and South America. A corresponding station is under construction at Rio de Janeiro.

MAN EXONERATED OF ROBBERY IS RELEASED FROM PRISON
Angelo Timponi Was Convicted of Holdup at Missouri Baptist Sanitarium in 1923.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 21.—Angelo Timponi, 22 years old, of St. Louis, was discharged from the State Penitentiary yesterday after expiration of a five-year term, with merit allowances, for the $4700 payroll holdup at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, Nov. 13, 1923. Ernest Wallace, 24, convicted with him, is serving a 20-year sentence.
Both Timponi and Wallace have been exonerated of the robbery by James Walsh, 20, who confessed he and two other men committed the crime. Walsh has since been convicted of another robbery.
The Penal Board was reluctant to pardon or parole Timponi and Wallace on no other evidence than the Walsh confession. The views of Circuit Attorney Sidener were sought. He said he believed the men had been tried fairly, but suggested Wallace's sentence might be commuted so as to release him at the same time Timponi was discharged. Wallace's application for pardon will be considered by the Penal Board this month. A similar application by Timponi recently was unsuccessful.

PENNSYLVANIA WARDEN REJECTS PRISON ADVICE
By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—Disapproval of unsought advice on how to run prisons was expressed by John C. Groom, Warden of the Eastern Pennsylvania penitentiary, Philadelphia, in an address before the annual congress of the American Prison Association, in session here. Groom said he thought prison managers knew a little more about how to do the work than outsiders.
"If let alone, unhampered by cranks and reformers, running a prison is as simple as running a boarding school," the warden said.

The company's method of giving gifts to public officials, the complaint alleges, tends to influence such officials to purchase its products to the exclusion of competitors.

M'DONOUGH WILL NOT BE IN WASHINGTON LINEUP AGAINST GRINNELL

HALFBACK IS NOT ABLE TO DON UNIFORM

Bears Depart Tonight With Heaviest Team That Has Represented Local Institution This Year.

The Washington U. football squad of 22 men will entrain tonight at 6:45 o'clock for Grinnell, Ia., where they meet the Pioneers Saturday in a Missouri Valley Conference championship game. The squad will arrive in Grinnell early tomorrow morning and will limber up on the playing field. The Grinnell eleven visited Francis Field last year, where they were noosed out by the margin of a field goal, 3 to 0.

George McDonough, sophomore backfield star, whose spectacular work in the Rolla game here excited the comment of all Bear fans, will be left behind. McDonough was injured in practice two days before the meeting with Nebraska. He was sent into the Husker contest at the opening of the second half and was re-injured on the first play. After the game it was believed that a few days would be sufficient to heal his injury, consisting of torn side muscles; but he has been unable to don uniform all week.

Whittier, fullback, seems to have recovered from the shoulder injury which he received from the Cornhuskers, but he may be withdrawn early. Coach Bob Higgins intimated, Clyde Collins, the tackle who was given a chance at the fullback post in the Ames game, probably will receive the assignment. Collins, the defensive ace of the eleven, will be replaced in the line by Jerry Hoffman, former Soldan player. Francis Drake, another reserve tackle who has been showing ability, will also be left behind with a bad side.

How They Will Line Up. Of the two full teams which will be taken, the probable first string selection will be: Capt. Mahan, Senné, Hayes and Whittier in the backfield, with Harding, Rickert, Lockard and Burch in reserve.

In the line will be McCarrall, Duncan, Libman, Kurz, Collins, Kaplan and Brown, with McDonough, Hoffman, Hannibal, Vesper, Elliott, Sturbois and Rossetti awaiting their turns.

The lineup which Higgins will have at his option will probably be the heaviest Bear eleven put into action this season. The team will average about 172 pounds with Whittier in the game, the exact weight which is reported from the Grinnell headquarters. The fact that they will be battling on even weight terms has considerably heightened the optimism in the Bear camp and the Pikeaway followers are predicting a repetition of last year's victory with an even larger margin.

If the green Bear eleven can successfully meet the anticipated Pioneer overhead attack with sufficient coolness, the chances for the locals seem excellent. Their line, while mediocre, demonstrated some ability against the heavier Nebraska wall, while the Bear backfield is given an edge over the Pioneers generally.

Lee Fohl Calls On Pirate Owner; Fletcher Let Go

Boston Leader Thought to Be Seeking Post With Pittsburgh Baseball Club.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 21.—A conference between Lee Fohl and Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has set baseball observers to wondering whether the Boston Red Sox manager will come here next year to replace Bill McKechnie, dismissed last Monday as manager of the Pirates.

Fohl and Dreyfus were in conference yesterday, but the latter, asked whether Fohl had come to seek a managerial job, said the Boston manager merely had paid him a friendly visit while en route to his home in Cleveland. Fohl spent only a short time here.

Fletcher Is Released. By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—The Philadelphia National League baseball club will have a new leader next year.

Arthur Fletcher, the peppery manager who has piloted the team for several years, has been released. President William F. Baker has notified him that his contract, expiring this fall, will not be renewed.

Fletcher, at his home in Collinsville, Ill., informed friends here of Mr. Baker's action and said that he had no definite plans for the future.

Speculation as to Fletcher's successor was rife today. Many fans believed that Stuffy McInnis would get the call.

CANADIAN HOCKEY STAR JOINS CHICAGO

PRESTON, Ontario, Oct. 21.—Bobbie Preston, forward of the Preston (Ontario) senior amateur team, has signed a contract to play with the Chicago team in the National Hockey League.

IN THE WAKE OF THE BIG SERIES

Art Reinhart's Earned

Run Average of 36 Per

Game Set a New Record

Cardinals' 1926 Pitching Ace Just Couldn't Get Going and Walked Four Out of Five Men to Face Him—a Single Netted Him Two New—and Unpleasant—Marks

NO. 5—ARTHUR REINHART

Arthur Reinhart, southpaw, played no great part in the Cardinals' world series triumph. He made his only appearance in part of one inning, in which he failed to retire a single batter, and, incidentally, was charged with defeat in the fourth contest. Reinhart, however, was on the hill long enough to establish a new world series record.

Regarded as a pitcher with control, Reinhart's new record was established in wildness, in that he walked four out of five men to face him. Four passes in a single inning set a new figure for pitchers to shoot at in the future.

Four runs were charged against Reinhart, all earned. Thus, figured on a nine-inning basis, Reinhart yielded an average of 36 earned runs a game, which probably is a world's record in itself.

After that Reinhart did not get another chance. He wanted one. After his showing he said: "I'd like to get another crack at those Yanks, to show everyone I am not such a bum as I appeared to be."

But Arthur Conrad Reinhart was a real ace during the season. He holds another record. He was the only member of the St. Louis Nationals to draw a fine during the season. That came in the early part of the year, when he was plastered $50 for pitching wrong to Hack Wilson of the Cubs.

Reinhart is not exactly a youngster. He has pitched baseball in almost every section of the country, including the Pacific Coast, American Association and International, the three Class AA circuits. He has a fine easy motion, fair speed and curves, and as a general rule fine control—something he lacked in his world series appearance.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 21.—Coach Fielding Yost ordered the Wolverines to secret practice for the first time in more than a week, and indications are that Michigan will display its full bag of tricks against Illinois in an effort to clinch the leadership of the Big Ten.

Several new pass formations and tricky line plays were used yesterday but defensive work for backs and the line continued to be stressed.

IOWA CITY, Iowa.—Coach Ingersoll sent his grid men through the last hard scrimmage before the Ohio game. Freshmen using Ohio plays furnished the opposition. Don Hines, tackle, was in scrimmage for the first time since his sickness last week.

CHICAGO.—The University of Chicago Maroons have cast defensive work to the winds and from all indications will depend upon a battering slashing offense with some aerial work to overwhelm Purdue Saturday.

EVANSTON.—The Northwestern eleven is through with hard work before the Notre Dame game. Yesterday was the last day of scrimmages and the squad will take it easy until Saturday.

MADISON.—Offensive and defensive Indiana plays were hurled at two Wisconsin teams in a practice session lasting until dark. Although the freshmen teams, in the role of the Hoosiers, looked tricky, the varsity, led by Capt. Harmon and Rollie Barnum, crashed through for several long distance jaunts.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Anticipating noteworthy opposition from Northwestern Saturday, Knute Rockne is giving individual attention to every man who will compose his Saturday's squad. "Red" Smith, recently shifted from guard to fullback, bore the brunt of the first string's ball carrying in scrimmage and is considered a likely starter.

MINNEAPOLIS.—A midseason line crept into the Minnesota football team after it had departed four gridiron huskies who have played regular positions on the varsity were counted out because of injuries.

Three of these, Harold Barnhart, Donald Riddell and Doc Matchan, are backfield men, while Left Strand, fighting Fuqua, was the one casualty in the line.

COLUMBUS, O.—Statisticians at Ohio State thumbed the record today and told the Buckeye grid-men that if they defeat Iowa Saturday it will be the first time that they have beaten that team in the Ohio Stadium.

Ohio State will likely use short pass formations, as its major threat as emphasis is being placed on that style of playing.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—The Hoosiers held their last practice on the home lot preparatory to entraining for Madison to encounter the Badgers Saturday. Pat Page gave much attention to defense, and has developed a ground-gaining machine.

MISSOURI VALLEY.

LINCOLN.—The Cornhuskers stepped through their final practice drill today preparatory to entraining tonight for Lawrence, Kan., where they will clash with the University of Kansas Saturday.

In the final scrimmage session yesterday, Capt. Stiner suffered a cut under the eye and was forced to retire from the fray, but the injury was said to be superficial. Ray Randels probably will replace Ashburn at the other tackle position against Kansas.

DES MOINES.—Unless their injuries improve faster within the next day or two than in similar previous periods, Charles Delmege and Ray Helsmer, star linemen of Drake University's gridiron squad, will be out of uniform here. This announcement was made today by Coach Osele Solari, who already has started his search for an end and tackle to replace the apparently lost luminaries.

Interference was today's lesson for the backfield, while a charging drill was ordered for the line.

GRINNELL.—The passing attack developed by the Grinnell College football team this week is expected to be used to the limit in Saturday's clash with Washington. It was given a strenuous tryout against the freshmen yesterday and completely bewildered them, but the gains were not altogether one-sided, as the yearlings made several big advances with Washington plays.

AMES.—For the first time this season, varsity backs of the Iowa State College football team have scored consistent gains through the freshman line and around the wings. In last night's scrimmage the "cyclone" regulars, led by Fisher, a flashy ball carrier, made touchdowns regularly against the fresh, interspersing line plunges with numerous passes.

NORMAN.—The Oklahoma University varsity tried out its new plays yesterday against the freshmen in a sharp scrimmage aimed to wipe out any weaknesses. Coach Bonnie Owen is polishing up straight football formations in the hope of stopping the powerful Kansas Aggie eleven here Saturday. Reports from the Wildcat camp indicate the Aggies are claiming an edge with a heavy line. The Sooners are expected to rely to a large extent on an aerial game.

STILLWATER.—Coach Maubetsch called off scrimmage for his varsity squad yesterday because of the injury of four regulars. From the outlook now, the Oklahoma A. and M. eleven probably will enter the game Saturday with Texas Christian University at Fort Worth minus the services of Strack, guard; Hendrickson, tackle; Meyers, center; and McClain, halfback.

MANHATTAN.—Passing practice is occupying most of the Kansas Aggie's time in preparing for Saturday's contest with Oklahoma University at Norman. Scrimmage yesterday with the freshmen squad which used Oklahoma plays, showed the varsity had plenty of drive. Boyd, halfback, injured in the Texas game, is the only regular out of practice.

LAWRENCE.—Several new men probably will get a chance to show their ability when Kansas University meets Nebraska here Saturday. Coach Cappon has been using Raup, Anderson, Wellman, Fritts and Hamilton in the backfield in practice. The Jayhawk mentor has been devoting much time to developing his punters.

COLUMBIA.—Following a brisk workout this afternoon in which Coach Twinn Henry put the finishing touches to his regalia, the Missouri Tigers will pack their bags and prepare to depart tonight for Ames, where they will engage Iowa State College in a Missouri Valley Conference game Saturday. Thirty men will make the trip. The Tigers plan to open up one of their greatest aerial attacks of the season Saturday in an effort to sweep the Iowans aside in their drive for a third consecutive Valley championship.

EDDIE MITCHELL WINS FIGHT AT GARRICK

Of the five-bout program staged last night at the Garrick Theater, three fights ended in the first round and two went three rounds. Eddie Mitchell of the South Broadway A. C. won the decision over William Holterman of the Business Men's A. C. in three rounds, although knocked down five times.

Referee Sharpe stopped the Jack Balch-Eddie Moore bout in the first round when it was apparent that Moore was outclassed. Tom Gunning withdrew in the first round of his match with Carmen Duro when the latter threw too many gloves. A bout between Gene Stauble and Kenneth Stone was also stopped by the referee when the former had things too much his way. John Tomasi won a decision over Doc Hyatt in a tame three-rounder.

NAVY WILL OPPOSE NOTRE DAME IN THE WEST, NEXT SEASON

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—Navy and Notre Dame will meet in the latter's home gridiron at South Bend, Ind., next Oct. 15, Commander Jonas H. Ingram, director of athletics at the Naval Academy, announced last night. Ingram also said that Drake University has been offered the second Saturday in next October.

Navy next year will have football opponents from every section of the country, the athletic director said. The undefeated University of Alabama eleven was spoken of favorably as a possible Southern foe.

Woods Full of Promising Heavyweight Fight Timber

British Critic Who Attended New York Show Amazed at Number of Capable Big Fellows on the Card — Busy Time for Champion Tunney Is Forecast.

By Fair Play.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Gene Tunney started something when he dethroned Jack Dempsey. Heavyweight matches have been few and far between. This no doubt was due to the inactivity of the reigning champion and the lack of class among the big fellows.

Several weeks ago Ted Broadbent, the English fighter, who brought over Teddy Baldock, Alf Mancini and Jack Hood, sat in at a show of heavyweights and remarked:

"I never knew you could get such a card of good big fellows on one evening any where all over the world. Here you have six real good heavies and England is lucky to have one who you could say is fair."

Tex Rickard is serving up the big boys regularly and judging by the attendance at these shows the fans want to see them.

Plenty of Opposition for Gene.

Quite a bit of talk is going the rounds about Jack Dempsey's "come back." Tom Gibbons is off in the woods preparatory to starting again next spring. Jack Sharkey has filed his challenge. Harry Persson is just waiting for another fight and Munn, De Kuh, Carter, Tommy Loughran and Jack Delaney are all looking for a chance to fight Tunney.

Little has been said about Jack de Mave, the fighting lion. Jack is a quiet sort of fellow and has not made any pretensions to greatness via the newspaper route. Still de Mave goes along his merry way howling over all opposition, and if he keeps on this way there can be no question of his right to contest the claims of any challenger next send's next fight will be against Delfino, the Argentinian, who acted as Jack Dempsey's sparring partner for a time in Saratoga.

ARMY NAVY TICKETS WILL COST $10 TO $15

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Forty thousand tickets for the Army and Navy football game which will be played here Nov. 27 will be sold at $10 and $15, it was announced yesterday by E. J. Kelly, president of the South Park Commissioners in charge of arrangements for the game, which will dedicate the Soldiers' Field Memorial Stadium.

These prices were decided on as necessary to defray the cost of transporting the entire student bodies of the two academies to Chicago. This, it was estimated, would amount to more than $400,000.

PENNSYLVANIA BOOSES GAMES WITH CHICAGO AND NAVY

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—University of Pennsylvania officials announced yesterday that Pennsylvania would meet the University of Chicago in the city in 1927 and 1928. A contract to this effect has been signed. It was also announced Pennsylvania and Annapolis Academy had signed a contract for football games between the two institutions in Philadelphia in 1927 and 1928. A gentlemen's agreement entered into between Penn and Annapolis, it was announced, for games between the two institutions in 1927 and 1931, and thus assuming between the two for the years, although a contract entered into for only two

DAMAGE TO THE BUYING POWER of South, equal to the effects of "ten Florida hurricanes," will be the result of our record-breaking cotton crop, unless some way is found to lift the market above the cost of production.

This startling statement is made by Mark Sullivan, a Washington dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune, discussing the effects of the Department of Agriculture's early October cotton report, which estimates the crop at 16,627,000 bales. After the publication of this report the price of cotton dropped to 13 cents a pound, while the cost of production, which varies in different localities, estimated at from 16 cents to 18 cents a pound.

While the effects of the situation will first be felt in South,

The Problem is More Than a Sectional One

many editors remind us. To quote Mr. Sullivan from "In Washington it is realized that this decrease in capacity of the South to buy goods will ultimately be where those goods are made and sold, which is Detroit regards motors, and virtually everywhere in the North regards other goods. It is believed that the consequences of the cotton drop, while they must be tangible and avoidable, can nevertheless be absorbed over a long period so as to cause the minimum of disadvantage to the cotton business structure as a whole."

The problem is somewhat simplified by the fact cotton is not a perishable commodity, notes the Savannah News, which warns the growers, however, that, "if they continue to make big crops, they may expect to face prices." The Manufacturers Record suggests that we cotton prices what Britain did for rubber in the Stevenson plan, or Brazil for coffee in its valorization scheme.

To obtain a well-rounded conception of the cotton situation you should read the leading news in this week's Literary Digest, October 23d number. It quotes the views of governmental authorities and public opinion in the South as shown by leading Southern dailies. Plans are also advanced to remedy the conditions. About Your Own Line Developed by Research in The Billionarea Market

The Post-Dispatch is now prepared to extend into individual lines, its presentation of facts about The Billionarea—so that any manufacturer may have a complete analysis and survey of this Greater St. Louis Market, made solely from the standpoint of his particular line of products and his particular selling problems.

These surveys are developed from actual, accurate and careful research work in the field and by mail.

They serve to substantiate the policy of the Post-Dispatch in presenting manufacturers and advertisers with facts about this market as reliable in source and as complete in coverage as could possibly be made by a disinterested research organization fully equipped for this purpose.

Some idea of how thoroughly these surveys are made is shown by an outline of any one of them; for example, that on coffee, tea and cocoa. This survey is based on actual calls, both on hundreds of retail outlets and thousands of homes to get a complete cross-section of the coffee, tea and cocoa market conditions in The Billionarea. Successive chapters cover Consumption, Package Business, Store Distribution and Consumer Popularity [listed by actual brand names] and Competitive Factors.

Other surveys on automobiles, radios, soft drinks, malt syrups, tooth pastes, perfumes and toilet waters, electrical appliances, etc., are all made in the same thorough manner.

In connection with these surveys on specific lines there are three general surveys:

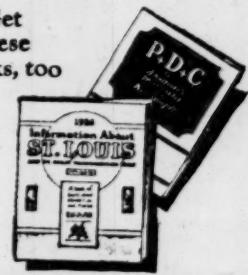

- [1] Density of Population,
- [2] Standards of Living and Purchasing Power,
- [3] Retail Outlets,

which, taken in conjunction with the special survey on a particular line, gives the manufacturer not only every detailed fact about this market in general, but about this market in specific reference to his own product and problem.

If your line has not yet been covered by such an intensive survey, the Post-Dispatch will be pleased to place the services of its survey department to work for you to unearth the facts you want in relation to this market. Such services are provided gratis to any manufacturer seriously interested in the sales and advertising opportunities of The Billionarea.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame. The sufferer is in constant dread. Bladder weakness, most folks call it. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

IT'S MY DUTY TO TELL

"Of the Wonderful Improvement in My Health Brought About Through the Use of the Great Herb Extract Remedy Known as Herb Juice."

"I feel it my duty to make this public statement in behalf of this great body builder Herb Juice in hope that other sufferers may try it and be relieved as I have been," said Louise M. Bleckman, who resides at 3509 Franklin avenue, St. Louis, Mo., in a conversation with the special demonstrator some time ago at Walgreen's drug store.

LOUISE BLECKMAN

As she spoke further of her condition she said: "I had heard so many people talk so much about Herb Juice and saw it praised so highly in the newspapers that I decided there must be something to it. So I got a bottle and before I had finished it I knew that all the things that had been said for it were true, because I have never seen any medicine work so instantaneously and give such pleasant results as does this remarkable remedy. I was in a badly run-down condition and extremely nervous before I started taking your Herb Juice, and I will admit that I tried quite a number of other remedies without any results. But I now feel it is my duty to join the throng of Herb Juice boosters and let my friends or anyone suffering as I did know of the great results that this medicine will give them if they will only give it a trial. I have built me up and my nerves have quieted down to normal, and I have gained considerable weight and I eat heartily, sleep soundly and have surplus energy, and I attribute my present state of good health to nothing more or less than the great remedy Herb Juice. It gives me great pleasure to be able to make this statement and I will always have a good word to say for Herb Juice."

Don't fail to see the Herb Juice man, direct from the Herb Juice Laboratories, who has established headquarters at Walgreen's drug store, 514 Washington avenue, and learn more of this great medicine that has relieved thousands of people right here in St. Louis. This great Herbal Extract remedy, called Herb Juice, now selling at the rate of a million bottles yearly.

HEAVY INCREASE IN TAX IN NORMANDY SCHOOL DISTRICT

It Covers a Large Section of St. Louis County Extending From Pine Lawn to Vinita Park.

AN ARGUMENT FOR MERGER WITH CITY

Residents Complain of Conditions and Think They Should Get More for Their Tax Money.

Many residents of the Normandy Consolidated School District, which covers a large section of St. Louis County, from Pine Lawn to Vinita Park, are complaining about a heavy increase in taxes in bills they are now receiving, which, they say, makes their taxes about what they would pay if living in St. Louis, but they complain of their school facilities, lack of fire and police protection, poor sewerage and makeshift street improvements.

The increase is proving an argument in favor of the city-county merger proposal to be voted on next Tuesday, as many of the Normandy district residents think they would get more for their tax money under municipal government. Not only has their tax rate been increased 65 cents on the $100, to $2.55, but in many instances assessments have been increased. Their tax rate now is just 3 cents lower than that of St. Louis.

As an example, one house in the Kenwood Park section of the district, assessed at about $3500, is taxed $93.30 this year, as against $57.58 last year. This is a five-room brick cottage on a 40x127-foot lot, which cost $5700 four years ago. Its owner said his sewage drained into a septic tank, his street was repaired by the county dumping cinders on it and he had no fire protection, but he thought there was a Deputy Sheriff stationed in the neighborhood, though he had never encountered the deputy.

The Post-Dispatch has received the following letter, signed "Vinita Park Resident":

I am a county resident who wishes very much to be annexed and who expects to be with just a little help. I and my friends have just received our tax reports and find them just double what they have been. Our taxes have been increased on account of a school vote that has profited us nothing. Our district sends our children clear over to Normandy, and they have to pay three carfares each way, consequently it is about as cheap to pay University City tuition and obtain much better school facilities, which we do. The present school situation at Vinita Park is absolutely hopeless. We pay $145 per year tuition for our daughter (at University City) in junior high and next year it will cost us $180 if we are not annexed.

School Rate There $1.70.
The tax rate in the Normandy district includes the standard 85 cents charged throughout the county for State, county and road taxes, and the district school rate there is $1.70 this year. Last year the school rate was $1.05. The additional 65 cents was voted by the district last April as a "building fund," to pay for necessary repairs, painting, etc. Other items in the school tax rate, which have not been changed, are: Teachers' fund, 60 cents; incidental fund, 5 cents; sinking fund, 20 cents; interest fund, 20 cents.

Last April voters of the Normandy district also approved a $122,000 bond issue to construct additions to six schools, five of which have been completed. Due to the increased assessed valuation of the district and the fact that $25,000 of old bonded indebtedness was retired recently, it was not necessary to increase the interest and sinking funds for this bond issue. Total bonded debt of the district now is $409,000, or almost one-fifth as much as the bonded debt of the St. Louis schools.

Assessed valuation of the Normandy district for this year is $13,762,650, while for last year it was $9,848,250. At the Assessor's office at Clayton it was explained that assessments for this year had been increased in Normandy, Webster Groves and the Fairview district, to equalize them with other districts. In addition, it was stated, new buildings in the Normandy area increased the valuation there.

Eleven Tax-Exempt Cemeteries.
There are 11 tax-exempt cemeteries, covering about 1100 acres, in the Normandy district, which has made fiscal affairs of the schools there difficult and last year resulted in some curtailment of educational activity. In addition, being a wholly unincorporated territory, the district is limited in the size of its school tax rate. The St. Louis school tax rate is 85 cents.

About 30 or 40 Vinita Park pupils attend the Normandy Junior and senior high school at 6701 Easton avenue, Wellston, a school official said. Many of them have to use the Creve Coeur, Midland, Hodiarnont and St. Charles car lines to make the trip, in round about fashion, and have to pay three fares each way. Other pupils walk as far as a mile and a half to reach the school.

BELIEVES SOUL CAN GO BACK IN PAST OR INTO THE FUTURE

Sir Oliver Lodge Accepts Theory of Balderston's Play; So Does
G. K. Chesterton.

Copyright, 1926, by The Press and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Sir Oliver Lodge declares that in his opinion souls frequently leave one human body and take possession of another, adding, "I believe it possible that the thesis of John L. Balderston's play, 'Berkeley Square,' is true, and that the soul of a twentieth century man may occasionally go back into some previous century and inhabit the body of a man living in what to us is past time, or may, for that matter, go into what to us is the future."

Sir Oliver, in public debate yesterday on "Berkeley Square," also stated that he could accept the theory of the play that time does not go only in a straight line, but is folded in layers, so that "it is conceivable for the soul, if not body, to step into the past or even the future."

G. K. Chesterton asserted that "as a Roman Catholic this thesis 'has no terror for me, for it is that of the great authority of the Catholic church, St. Thomas Aquinas.'"

PARADE FOR PASTOR-SLAYER FOR HALLOWEEN CALLED OFF

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 21.—Officers of the First Baptist Church last night called off plans for a Halloween parade in support of their fundamentalist pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. Frank Norris, whose trial for murder is scheduled to begin the next day, Nov. 1.

Church deacons decided against the parade as a result of the action of the City Council in ignoring a petition for official permission because the application was inadequately signed, it was said at the church offices.

Mayor Meacham, whose friend, D. E. Chipps, the pastor shot in the church office last summer, wrote the deacons that the city would permit the parade if some recognized personal signature was affixed to the petition. The original request was signed only "Board of Directors."

MEMPHIS POLICE FAIL TO GET GANGSTER ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Patrick Scanlon's Appeal Bond of $10,000 Revoked by Surety and He Is in Jail Here.

The plan of the Memphis police to take Patrick Scanlon, Hogan gangster, back to Tennessee for trial in the $4500 robbery of the Cole Manufacturing Co., was frustrated yesterday when a St. Louis Deputy Sheriff took Scanlon away from the local police and lodged him in the city jail.

It was explained that Scanlon's bondsman, who signed his $10,000 appeal bond after Scanlon had been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for the Maumond City Trust Co., here, had decided to surrender his principal and cancel the security.

Scanlon is to be held, therefore, until he gets a new bond. In the meantime, Chief of Police Gerk has asked the jailer to notify him when Scanlon is released so that he may be arrested again for the Memphis authorities, who have a warrant for him. Scanlon, it will be recalled, was arrested Sunday

Is Your Child Thin and Weak?

Right Way to Put on Good Flesh and Make Them Grow Up Strong and Vigorous

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy, there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset the stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying Marmola's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months, he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred per cent better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to insist on the original and genuine Marmola's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents at Wolf-Wilson Drug Stores or any druggist. Thousands of boxes sold daily.

afternoon at Jefferson City by Detective-Sergeant Girard, who happened to see him on the Missouri Pacific tracks there while passing in a train.

The State of Tennessee immediately forwarded requisition papers to the police here, who relayed them to Gov. Baker. Yesterday Gov. Baker approved the extradition proceedings, but Scanlon, meanwhile, was taken in charge by the Sheriff and will be held here.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The closing post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"A sudden rebound in securities values in response to rather general covering by speculators for the decline and a collapse in the cotton market today. The fact that the break in cotton failed to inspire concerted selling pressure in stocks formed the basis for belief that the rally was largely technical. Operation for the rise was encouraged, however, by a removal of fears over possible reductions in protective tariff schedules and by an easier tone in money. Call loans dropped to 4 per cent after renewal were arranged at 5. Noteworthy developments were lacking in the bond market, a generally steady tone prevailing in quiet trading."

Shorts Hasten to Cover.

"Surprised by the sudden demand for stocks at the opening of trading, speculators who had sold for a decline hastened to cover their commitments and the influx of buying orders effected a brisk recovery in the first half of the session. The rise naturally attracted realizing sales before it had gone to its usual lengths and renewed liquidation developed in some parts of the list when 'long' stock was released by those who had waited for a rally to get out of the market. The cover, however, of the motor shares were subjected to renewed selling pressure, giving the market an unsettled tone in the final hour. Suggestions that the recent decline had been carried too far for the time being were heard at the start and buying orders came into the market in such volume that many of the leading industrial favorites secured advances of from 1 to 6 points. General Motors on a spread opening changed hands at from 148 to 147 and then sold at 146. DuPont jumped 6 points, while other favorites rose sharply."

Change in Sentiment.

"The change in sentiment may have been due in a measure to word from Washington that the administration saw no reason for considering changes in tariff schedules as a result of the international bankers' manifesto. Secretary Mellon was quoted as saying after a conference with President Coolidge that in official quarters the manifesto was interpreted as applying only to European tariff rates. For this reason it was felt the suggestions contained in the document held no threat against American industry. As in previous sessions, no other development of significance appeared to have had an influence on the market's movement. Money was again plentiful, foreign rates down to 4 per cent. In fact, the fresh decline in cotton to new low levels for the season might have been put forward as an argument for selling stocks. Increased selling pressure in cotton was attributed to expectations that a Government crop estimate Monday in excess of 17,000,000 bales. Liverpool quotations sagged, while the Gulf storm failed to damage the crop, leaving weather conditions still favorable for a bumper crop."

Exchange Market Irregular.

"Wide and irregular fluctuations in the foreign exchange market were attributed to speculative operations in European and Far East markets. Life sprouted to a new peak for the year in response to rumors in London before the market opened, but the advance was more than lost before the end of the session. A similar movement took place in rates on Paris, French francs selling below the level after an early rise. Sterling held steady in response to heavy demand here. Chinese rates rebounded as a result of the recovery of more than 20 cents in the quotations, and the Peruvian pound came back sharply."

Grain Prices Down.

"Grain prices joined in the downward movement of commodity prices. Wheat losing about 1/2 a bushel and corn falling back fractionally."

Foreign Exchange

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Reaction to the favorable course of the French franc during the day was followed by a decline to the dollar and 130.70 in the pound sterling. The highest quotations in the market were for the franc, 130.70, and for the pound, 130.70.

Turpentine, Flax, Linseed

Linseed oil quotation in 1 to 4 barrels, 12 1/2 to 13 1/2 cents for new and 12 1/2 to 13 1/2 cents for old.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 21.—Turpentine, 31 1/2 to 32 1/2 cents; flax, 31 1/2 to 32 1/2 cents; linseed, 31 1/2 to 32 1/2 cents.

A COUNTER PROPOSAL
CHAPTER 49.

"TELL me quickly what you have in mind!" Doris implored Count Romeo.

She was distressed by the thought that her letter to Ivan Ivanoff, penned in the hope of lessening his pain, would innocently plunge her into the police investigations of the unfortunate poet's suicide.

If anything in her power to do could have helped the unhappy man in any way—could have brought him back to life—she would have been the first to offer herself on whatever altar of sacrifice the circumstances demanded. But it was too late now and after all, in common sense, she was not to blame. It was not her fault that she had not been able to love Ivanoff.

Therefore, she realized only that she was again about to "achieve notoriety," as her Aunt Elsie so bitterly put it. Already she could see, with a shudder, her own name blazoned as "the girl in the case." Once again, she would be plunged into an unpleasant episode with a near-sensational flavor.

She sighed and begged the Count to tell her what his plan was.

He rose and paced the room. "Did you sign that letter with your full name?" he asked.

"Just Doris."

"Ah," he exclaimed with relief. "I hoped so. Of course, there will be little difficulty in establishing the fact that you are the Doris for whom Ivanoff took his own life. But, with a fresh development to put the authorities off the trail, there will be no proof positive that you, and not another of the scores of Dorises in Paris, are the girl in the case. If you accept my proposition, a reasonable doubt will be created, not among our acquaintances who know, but as far as the authorities and the public are concerned."

"Yes," Doris lifted her eyes hopefully.

"I suggest," said the Count very matter-of-factly, "that you immediately and publicly announce your engagement to me."

"To you!" gasped Doris.

Her lips began to tremble again. "But—but I don't want to marry you."

He shrugged and flicked the ashes carefully from his cigarette. "Have I mentioned marriage? I suggested merely an engagement."

"But—" Doris was frightenedly bewildered. She also plainly didn't take to the Count's proposition.

"Think it over," he suggested calmly.

He was careful not to approach her, not to say a word of love-making. He didn't want to frighten her, to swing her into an obstinate mood. Her acceptance of his proposal was too necessary to his plans.

Once he could get her bound to him by even the faintest cord, he could strengthen it at will. And he meant to do so.

There were three factors in his desire. One was the invaluable aid she rendered him with perfect innocence, in his secret profession.

Another was the fact that she was a woman he desired. The third was concerned with the jewels, hidden in Russia, which were the poet's dying gift to her.

The latter telling of their hiding place was even now in the mails. Doris would receive Ivanoff's last letter in the first post the following morning.

Count Romeo had quite made up his mind into whose possession the family treasures of the Ivanoffs would fall eventually. It would be a very simple matter to secure them from Doris, once he was married to her—or perhaps even when they were merely engaged.

So he decided not to speak of marriage for the present. Perhaps it would not be necessary ever to speak of it. The Count valued his freedom.

"Well!" he inquired after a long silence, "what do you say to my proposal? Let's consider it a mere matter of form. I ask nothing of you. It is my happiness to serve you and to save you from an experience which I can assure you will be unpleasant."

"It seems frightfully cowardly of me to take advantage of your kindness," Doris faltered.

She was thinking a little wearily how tricky life was. Must she always be only a sham? Once to pose as a man's wife when she was not! Again, to pretend to be another's fiancée!

How circumstances reached out and clutched her and forced her to shameful pretenses, when with all her heart she yearned for truth! She, who wanted above all else in the world, love and marriage and home and peace!

"I suppose," she said slowly, "I suppose I'll have to accept. I see no other way. But you're being too kind—"

He interrupted her by lifting her fingers to his lips.

"I am being very selfish. You honor me by allowing me the privilege. And now," he said briskly, "I'll be off to attend to details. I'll have the announcement in all the morning papers and I'll spread the happy tidings here and there in the cafes. News travels like wildfire on the boulevards, you know."

He was true to his word. The following morning, such of the world as was interested, gleaned over its rolls and coffee, the news of the engagement of Doris Mackay to Count Romeo.

Two people read it with lively emotion. One was Camilla, the other was Hartley. Both of them acted immediately, in most unexpected fashion.

A RUDE AWAKENING.
CHAPTER 50.

"YOU little wretch! What have you been up to now?" said Camilla to Doris over the telephone.

The vexation in her tone hid her complete personal satisfaction. She didn't care a snap if Doris were involved in every scandal in Paris. It was sufficient to her happiness that her cousin had got herself engaged to Count Romeo. For Camilla still strongly suspected that her own lack of success with Hartley was due to Doris.

She determined to urge a speedy marriage. She even thought that she could afford to donate a trousseau.

"Oh!" said Doris faintly, "you've heard? You know all about—everything!"

"My dear child, everybody knows. You're probably the talk of the cafes where your acquaintances gather today. Anybody who ever saw that melancholy Russian mooning around you know that you're the 'Doris' of the story. But I will say you're clever to have come out with your engagement to the Count on the very self-same day."

"It was Count Romeo's idea," protested Doris.

"My compliments to him, then. He's shrewder than I thought him. He knows how to strike when the iron is hot."

"But it isn't a real engagement," Doris explained. "He—we're just pretending to be engaged until this frightful affair blows over."

"Nonsense," declared Camilla sharply. "Grab him while you can. Titles are always a prize. Any American girl would give her eyes to be in your boots."

"But I don't love him," wailed Doris.

"Fiddlesticks!" retorted Camilla. "You don't have to love a title. It's sufficient to possess one. Wait till you're ready to go on the opera stage and see how much more pleasant the path will be made for the Countess da Silva than for plain Doris Mackay."

"I don't believe you'll ever understand," sighed Doris.

"I understand perfectly well—unless you're a much greater little fool than I take you for. But, between ourselves, Doris, I'm beginning to think you're as deep as they make 'em, beneath that mask of innocence."

She rang off chuckling.

Doris returned to her half-hearted practice at the piano. But every so often, her hands would fall from the keyboard and her exquisite voice would break off in the midst of a song.

She couldn't sing without thinking of Ivan Ivanoff, lying dead at the other side of town—albeit because of her. She wanted to go to the late studio of the unfortunate poet, to pay her tearful respects to a friend whom she had valued, but the Count, before he left her the previous evening, had counseled strongly against such a surrender to sentiment.

"Your presence can't do any good. You'll only walk right into the scandal I'm trying so hard to keep you out of."

Business Methods in the Home

KEEPING house is a business, a career, and women are awakening to the fact. No more hit or miss working with indefinite plans, but real business methods must be used if we would be successful in the job.

After planning short cuts in work, step saving, labor and time saving, and the best plan of economical efficiency, we will be surprised that the machinery runs as though on greased wheels. Develop a system which fits your needs. For instance, early marketing saves not only the housekeeper's time, but the delivery man's as well. To plan and prepare everything possible for the dinner in the morning saves time.

On the kitchen book shelves there should be a bill file, a business letter file, a day book, a memorandum book, cook books, and two scrap books. One scrapbook is for cooking recipes we may want to clip and paste; the other is for household information, such as how to take out stains, better cleaning methods, etc.

If you put your mind to it you can train trades people. This may seem a broad statement, but we have tried it and know whereof we speak. Be definite and have orders well made out, order by date in the day, insist on a delivery at your convenience, and pay promptly. Pay as you buy, or once a week.

The more perfect the household system the less outside help is

So she promised to remain indoors all day, admitting no one but herself.

That is why when young Hartley called on three separate occasions, he was blandly assured by the little French woman that Mademoiselle was out and had not said when she would return.

In the first post, the promised letter from the poet had arrived.

Doris read it with difficulty, her eyes blurred with tears.

It informed her in detail where the Ivanoff jewels were hidden. It named the village in Russia, the very peasant's cottage in which the treasure was secreted under a certain brick in a smoke-blackened fireplace, which could be ascertained by counting so far in this direction and so far in another.

The unhappy poet, in the next to the last letter he had ever written, had even named the gems whose exquisite beauty waited there for the woman of his heart to claim and thus render her own beauty more splendid. Among them was a magnificent blue diamond which was reputed to have once adorned the crown of Russia's czar.

Doris felt not the slightest thrill at the prospect of the fabulous treasure within her grasp. She would have given it all to have poor Ivan Ivanoff restored to life.

Hardly knowing yet what she intended to do about it, concerned only with her distress and recriminations, she sought a place to conceal the explanatory document where traitorous and avaricious eyes might not fall upon it.

First, she looked it in the ebony box which held her treasures. But, later, she remembered that Count Romeo at all times asked access to that box—to admire anew its contents, he explained—so she removed it and secreted it in another hiding place in her bedroom.

Not that she distrusted the Count. Far from it. But it seemed to her disloyal and most unbecoming to confine the unhappy Russian's dying letter to his rival, her acknowledged fiancé.

As for the jewels—the wealth within her grasp—they made little impression upon her. The thought behind them touched her, but they themselves—their existence—seemed completely unreal, like a fairy story.

She was not possessed of an adventurous spirit. For the time being, she seriously doubted she would ever go to Russia, even even dream of claiming them. Somehow the very thought of such a course struck her as mercenary and worldly when their donor was so newly dead.

So when the Count made admiring references to the letter, Doris put him off, would tell him nothing. He saw then and there that he would have to marry her to get possession of the strange bequest. Not that he was averse to marrying her. Her slender resistance rendered her more desirable.

When poor Ivan Ivanoff was buried, Doris sent violets without a card and wept alone in her apartment, while the simple, business-like obsequies were taking place at the other end of Paris.

That same evening, the Count ventured his first endearment. His kiss met with a sharp rebuff.

"We're not really engaged, you know," she reminded him. "Now that—everything is over, we can return to being just friends."

"You think so?" he lighted a cigarette coolly. "Let me tell you my charming, little girl, that I fully intend to hold you to your bargain. We are to be married as quickly as I can arrange it."

Out-of-Door Costumes Sketched at The Racine

A STRICTLY SPORTING AND TWO VERY FEMININE TYPES

By MARGUERITE MARTIN.

THE autumn racing meet at Fairmount is affording women an opportunity for the display of smart new out-of-door costumes and they are rising to the occasion.

The bright autumn hues thrown into bolder relief by the Indian summer haze hanging over the landscape, the touch of frost in the air, the animation of the throng moving excitedly between betting ring and grandstand, club house or rail, all inspire women with a feeling that their costumes must have something of the same snappiness, gaiety, dash.

To some it is eminently a sport-ing event, demanding strictly the costume pour le sport. The figure sketched sitting on the step wearing a tan knitted blouse, brown tweed skirt, tan woolen hose, russet reptile leather shoes, vagabondish hat, kerchief printed in tawny and russet autumn shades and loose, rough top coat is rather an extreme example of many sports costumes on the same order.

To others the races are rather a dressy occasion. It really depends upon one's own type and tastes whether the sport or the more dressy afternoon costume is the thing to wear. An example of a snappy, yet distinctly feminine costume is the dark blue cloth frock made with two circular flounces on the skirt, much embroidered in metallic threads, and snug fitting bodice worn with a bright scarlet beret and big fluffy scarf of fox.

Still more fluffy and feminine is the frock of crepe in a mahogany shade with facings of many ribbon ties, ruffles and appliques in pink sketched third from the left. The skull fitting turban of gold topped with black velvet fluting is ornamented with a pin representing a similarly turbaned head.

Gold lacquered leather cut out in a bow knot pattern adorning one hip, both sleeves and bordering the lapped skirt, is the distinguishing feature of the next sketch. Cape coats of black or dark blue crepe or smooth finish cloth were worn by some of the smartest women in the boxes last Saturday.

A black and white tailored ensemble with its closely wrapped and short skirt of a broken checked mixture, black cloth coat faced and collared and bordered with the checked material, worn with one of the high crowned turbans, was exceedingly trim and snappy.

The number of good-looking two-piece suits suggest they are coming back into their own after a season or two of eclipse by the one-piece and coat. One sketched is of heavy woolly cloth in a deep orange shade. The pockets of mink are decorative and must be nice and practical, too, on cold days.

Down below I have sketched a simple though striking costume worn by a young girl. It was of moss-green velvet, one piece and girdled and buckled in the same material. A snug green satin hat trimmed with a matching pom-pom and a big bunch of artificial violets worn on one shoulder were other details.

A two-piece suit, tailored and sporty, was made of a novelty velvet, gray and white plaid in design and color, the gray velvet nap being embossed upon a smooth woven white ground. It had gray kimmer collar and pocket facings.

TIPS FOR HOME DRESSMAKERS

Some of the newest imported dresses have the fullness of the sleeve at the elbow. A deep cuff extends to the elbow where the sleeve is fitted in puff fashion.

Shirring is frequently seen in the new fall models and one of the newest modes of applying it is in a shirred girdle and scarf. The shirrings run horizontally and there are three rows in the scarf and four in the girdle.

Black velvet continues to be a favorite for the evening dress and black taffeta embroidered in rhinestones is featured in the shops as a modish dance frock.

Trim the red dress with beaver. This is especially effective on the wine colors and maroons and is much used.

Wool embroidery is a favorite

Creamed Radishes.

Remove the roots and leaves from enough red radishes, or peeled, sliced white radishes to make three cups. Boil tender in salted water to cover, drain and add one and one-half cups white sauce seasoned with curry powder and a little lemon juice. Serve plain or on toast.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

When you grow tired of ways that wind of joys that swiftly flee, look backward through the years and find the child you used to be. Look back and see those sunbright hours that never knew a care save transient griefs like April showers that make the world more fair. Oh, then went peace and tenderness forever at your side, and changeless there, through all Earth's stress, love, constant as the tide. Look back with happy eyes, and find a spirit proud and free, serene and innocent and kind, the child you used to be! Find faith which never knew a doubt, find trust in all men's truth, cast vexing cares and problems out with spells of by-gone youth. Bring back to worldly ways that wind too long and wearily, some share of all the peace you find, the child you used to be!

Spanish Potatoes.

Put enough peeled, raw, white potatoes through the food chopper to make a quart. Add three sweet peppers and put through the food chopper with an onion. Stir in one teaspoon salt and a little pepper. Put in a very well buttered pan, making the layer one inch deep. Dot with butter and bake from 20 to 25 minutes in a hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

The Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis

THE TARIFF WALL.

HUMPTY DUMPTY sat on a wall; Humpty Dumpty had a great fall. But when he complained that business was slack, They told Humpty Dumpty to sit on a tack.

TOO TRUE.

WHEN royalty invades the scene The thought occurs, alack! You cannot entertain a Queen Unless you have the Jack.

QUITE SO.

"PUSSYCAT, Pussycat, where have you been?" I've been to White House to see the Queen." "Pussycat, Pussycat, how did she look?" "Just like she'd stepped out of an old fairy book."

GOOD WORK.

See where some of our substantial citizens flung a dinner in honor of Branch Rickey, the gent who made a pennant possible for St. Louis. Not that Branch was particularly hungry but 38 years is a long time between meals.

"Mrs. McPherson to Stick to Her Kidnaping Story."

Just like the guy who had a run-in with the goldfish.

The man on the sandbox says if candidates for office are as good as they claim to be and as bad as the other party says they are, they ought to make pretty good average citizens.

"Prosperity to Go On, Schwab Predicts."

Personally, we'd rather have it stick around a while.

See where Bill McKeechle who piloted the Pirates to a world's championship in 1925 has been made to walk the plank. What price glory?

Queen Marie says she came to America to see everything beautiful. Consequently the committee made no mistake in including St. Louis in her itinerary.

Speaking of Queens and other Cards, see where Alexander was touched up for 11 hits and 10 runs by a bunch of amateurs in Omaha the other day. We have a kind of a hunch amounting almost to a conviction that Alex wasn't trying.

Judging by the reported over-production in the cotton crop we gather that the Volstead law had little or no effect on the cotton gin.

GOING AND COMING.

After taking a prisoner to Denver Detective Girard brought a St. Louis gangster whom he found running loose back with him. No dead mileage there.

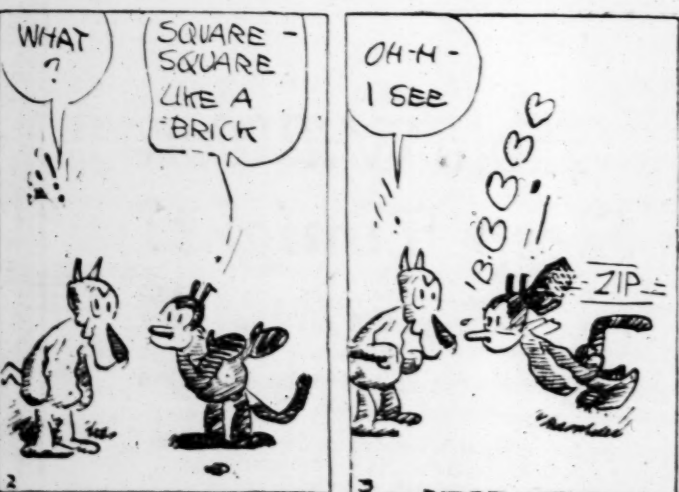

Having had a good workout on the Prince of Wales, society went through the reception of Queen Marie without the semblance of an error as the sport writers would quaintly put it.

It has been said that it would take St. Louis 240 years to "sewer" the county based on the progress of the River des Peres project. That, you might say in a manner of speaking, is a pipe.

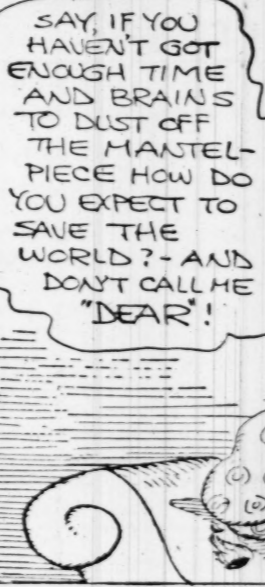

And for the sake of the fame and reputation of our more or less fair city we hope and trust that the said River des Peres will not be broadcasting when Queen Marie drops in to pay us a visit.

"Invents Wings for Humans." Flying in the face of nature, we call it.
